

Secret Shelf Letter

Did B.C. Balk U.S. Lab?

By JACK FRY, Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett has a secret letter which explains why B.C. last week hastily slapped a Crown reserve on Canada's Pacific continental shelf, it was learned Wednesday.

It now is believed the government laid claim to the shelf in an effort to thwart the plans of a large U.S. research firm to establish an underwater base of operations off the coast of B.C. It could not be determined whether these plans were of a commercial or military nature, and several large firms reached in California and Washington, D.C., denied any knowledge of the venture.

REASON WHY

Premier Bennett earlier brushed aside the Crown reserve with the comment that the government simply wanted "to stop squatters sneaking in." He would neither deny nor confirm reports that he had a letter in his possession relating to the continental shelf.

"There must be some mystery in politics," he said. But Attorney-General Bonner, who initiated the unusual action, confirmed the existence of a letter addressed to the premier, which had some bearing on the government's decision.

"I've seen such a letter. It contained a tangible indication of activity offshore," said the attorney-general.

He said the government had been informed of these activities as a courtesy, but he could not remember whom the letter came from.

NO PROVISION

The government order was rammed through so rapidly last Friday that it contained no provision for continuation of the day-to-day operations now being carried out in coastal waters.

As an afterthought, the provincial cabinet Tuesday passed an amendment exempting the government order from being applied to the day-to-day operations now being carried out in coastal waters.

Russian Crown Auctioned Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Imperial Russian marriage crown, containing 1,535 diamonds and set with the last three Romanov emperors, was auctioned Wednesday to a Chicago jeweler for $77,500 in a $1,000,000 sale of the jewel collection of Mrs. Sidney De Kay, widow of counsel for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. The crown will be kept intact for display purposes.

Hellyer Starts Final Big Sell

One Force 'Right for All'

OTTAWA (Special) — Defence Minister Hellyer, starting the final "big sell" of unification, Wednesday called it right for the nation, for the force and for the men and women who serve in it.

It was the start of second reading of the unification bill and, after a one-day skirmish, it was put off until a later date. A marathon debate is certain.

The first reaction to Mr. Hellyer's 65-page speech came from Conservative Marcel Lambert, who charged the government is putting Canada's defence into the hands of the U.S.

The government, he said, is turning Canada's forces into a peacekeeping force for the UN.

But peacekeeping is no longer "in good odor" at the UN, he claimed.

"We would have to rely more and more," Mr. Lambert said, "on the U.S. to defend us in future attacks."

"We would have to look to the presence of U.S. troops and installations on Canadian soil."

This way, he said, Canada would become a satrap of the U.S.

And how much acceptance Canada's peacekeeping forces would there be at the UN?

"The object of this bill is not to destroy and erase in one stroke the traditions of the past but to build, on the solid foundation we have forged, a strong and viable force to meet Canada's needs of tomorrow."

He promised Canada's influence, and its capacity to act in favor of peace and

DOCKS ACTION STYMIED

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Single-handed, a Quebec separatist has blocked the government's plan to put 10,000 men back to work and stop a West Coast work stoppage that is costing millions of dollars a day.

Gilles Gregoire, the Independent MP for Lapointe, Wednesday ignored pleas from all parties to let the government bend the rules and bring in legislation to end the strikes today.

After half an hour of pleas, government House Leader George McRae, fighting hard to control his rage, said: "I don't believe that any parliamentarian can afford to have Parliament as a whole blackmailed."

Mr. Gregoire formerly was a member of the Creditiste Party, but quit this year because he believed in a separate status for Quebec, to be obtained by peaceful means.

A Bitter Blow

His action in the Commons, caused by the West Coast for French-English relations, and many westerners saw it just that way.

In his appeal to Mr. Gregoire, New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas said:

"If we are to have any type of national unity and national identity, it will have to come from recognizing not only the problems in our own provinces, but also the problems of people in other parts of Canada."

Mr. Gregoire refused to give unanimous consent to allow the Commons to sit in special session at 11 a.m. today to deal with legislation to appoint a public administrator to end the work stoppage.

The government needs unanimous consent to change rules or proceed with legislation unless it gives 40-hours notice.

In the national emergency caused by the West Coast stoppage, it gambled that it would be given permission to hold the special session and to introduce the legislation immediately.

When the Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. today, its regular sitting time, the government would again have to ask for unanimous consent, this time to introduce the legislation.

If it is not given, the legislation could not be introduced before Monday, at colonial extra cost for the nation.

Last night, attempts were being made to persuade Mr. Gregoire to co-operate today.

Mr. Gregoire's obstruction was based on his belief that the government was not facing up to the problem of keeping open

Both Sides Sue As Docks Wait

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shipping on the west coast was still at a standstill Wednesday while both sides in a longshore dispute waited for federal action. (See also Page 5.)

A spokesman for striking longshore foremen said his group is opposed to trusteeship and administrators but, if such legislation is passed, the foremen have no choice but to obey the law.

A spokesman for maritime employers said an administrator as proposed by the government would have to ask the companies to call out longshore gangs, ask foremen to resume work and instruct the longshore union to make its members work in a "normal fashion."

Meanwhile, longshoremen and longshore foremen filed separate damage writs in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday.

The ILWU writ asks a court declaration that the companies have conspired to break the collective agreement by locking out the longshoremen.

The other writ, by the foremen's local of the ILWU, claims foremen's fundamental rights of freedom of assembly were breached by the companies.

U.S. Arrests, Frees Mayor

Major Flap in Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. military police disarmed and handcuffed the mayor of Saigon early today after he was reported creating a disturbance and firing a machine-gun on the city waterfront.

Mayor Van Van Cua, 40, a paratrooper colonel and doctor, was taken enraged and shouting to a police station where he was released after his identity was established.

The U.S. embassy expressed regret, but not an apology, over the incident, and began an investigation.

U.S. officials said an MP jeep patrol found a man had been firing across the Saigon River near a floating restaurant about 3 a.m., during curfew hours, and a small crowd had collected.

The MPs said the man had been drinking and pointed the gun at them. They slapped it away, frisked him—finding a revolver, and handcuffed him before Vietnamese MPs took him to police headquarters.

Witnesses said the mayor at first demanded Prime Minister Ky or U.S. Ambassador Lodge unlock his handcuffs but left after a U.S. diplomat appeared.

The mayor's official said he paid $4.50 to a night club when an American could not pay for his drinks. The American then accused the mayor of stealing his wallet and, in an ensuing dispute, Cua fired his revolver. The American called U.S. MPs.

Mount View Drive

Girls beat boys Wednesday in Mount View Senior Secondary School's United Nations club penny drive.

But the real winners are the 500 neediest families in the Greater Victoria area who will share receipts of the drive.

A total of 4,724 pennies lined the auditorium floor, 2,380 of them set out by girls.

Donations by a student of 50 cents or more earned him — and, it seems, more often, her — an award of a red, blood-drop badge which read, "I gave till it hurt."

Signs throughout the school asked, "Are you hurting?"

It's just such drives that make the Colonist 500 Fund click.

Over its 10-year history, the fund has had the backing of thousands upon thousands of students with various schemes for collecting money.

Also numerous have been the adult clubs, associations and fraternities which have either donated outright or conducted drives to benefit the 500 fund.

A feature that appeals to every donor is that there are no administration costs involved. Every cent collected goes to the 500 neediest families as selected by welfare agencies.

Lack of toys this year has forced the sad disappearance of an annual toy auction which always sizeably bolstered fund receipts.

Mount View is the first school in the area to contribute to this year's fund, but there has been an indication a drive is being considered in at least one other school.

Wednesday the fund jumped $388.64 to $5,340.39. The total assures each of the 500 needy families a cheque of slightly more than $10 for Christmas.

Last year for the first time

'Defence in Jeopardy If Forces Are United'

HAIFAX (CP) — Rear-Admiral William Landymore, fired from the navy for his opposition to unification of the armed services, Wednesday unleashed a blistering denunciation of the program.

The 50-year-old former sea operations chief said unification would kill effective defence of Canada, crush morale in the three services and spark a mass exodus of serving officers and men. (See also Page 18.)

Admiral Landymore said Defence Minister Hellyer "has no regard whatsoever for the state of morale in the navy" and wants to spend $60,000,000 — the price of two replenishment ships — to put servicemen in uniforms most of them don't want.

He described his fight against unification as "the fin made further tests of the equipment.

He said he did not think use of such equipment was illegal.

Earlier, Commissioner Sargent said tape recordings made at the hotel will not be admitted as evidence immediately.

The retired county court judge agreed with a suggestion by George Murray, counsel for the royal commission, that before the tapes are dealt with, all evidence relating to them should be exhausted.

NOT ON CONTENT

Mr. Murray also said no witnesses will be questioned about what they heard on the tapes.

Earlier, Mr. Sargent said if the tapes were admitted, it would be in a secret session. He said he does not want to "pass up anything that can be held to be evidence."

Mr. Sargent was appointed as a one-man royal commission after the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada charged that its convention at Vancouver a month ago was rigged.

Tapes and electronic equipment were seized from room 809 of the hotel where the convention was held.

David Arnold Macleod, an inspector with the department of transport, told how he, Keith Sears, also a DOT inspector, and Murray Johnston, a Canadian union delegate, tested the electronic equipment found in the hotel room.

The records showed room 309 was registered to William J. Dawson of Kamloops on Nov. 2 and Weldon (Bud) Graham of the front desk at the convention hotel, produced registration and telephone records relating to several rooms.

Selective Pinch Enough—Brown

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — overseas trade in and out of British Foreign Secretary George Brown told Commonwealth UN ambassadors Wednesday that selective, mandatory sanctions should suffice to bring down Rhodesia's white-supremacist regime, diplomatic sources said.

A compulsory ban, observed by all UN member countries, against purchase of selected Rhodesia exports "should be an effective and easy way of bringing this obdurate regime to heel," Brown was reported to have said. (See also Page 3.)

He was said to have emphasized that Britain proposed economic action against Rhodesia alone, meaning it has no intention of trying to interfere with such as the fellow who sits all week long, then tries to play 18 or 36 holes of golf on Sunday, and begins to huff, puff and get red in the face.

The difference lies in whether the man keeps in shape.

HEDGEHOPPERS

I say by all means continue with the golf as long as it's fun and you don't run short of breath or feel exhausted.

The same applies to the hedge. When jumping over it becomes an effort, that's the time to stop.

The phrase about the "tremendous cardiac reserve" is happy news. The heart originally is many times as strong as it needs to be to keep blood flowing. This extra strength, or "cardiac reserve" is what keeps us going in later life after our arteries start to harden, or we have had some heart damage.

Healthy Hopper Tries Hedge

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 55 and have been fairly active all my life — light exercise every day, mostly walking, playing golf, etc.

Problem: We have a five-foot hedge and whenever I go next door to visit, I walk to the hedge, run the last two or three steps and jump over it.

My wife takes a dim view. She says I jump like a kangaroo but act like a jackass. She feels it is a strain on my heart. Is the worrying unduly?

I just had a physical for a large insurance policy and the doctor said I have a tremendous cardiac reserve, whatever that means. My wife reads your column and will listen to your advice as I will. She has made me give up golf because of a possible heart attack. — H.G.

A comfortable amount of exercise is good for everyone — a comfortable amount, I said.

I guess it's your wife's right to decide that you look like a kangaroo or jackass to her. That's her opinion. But hasn't she heard of Dr. Paul Dudley White, the noted heart authority, who is 70 years or so older than you but rides a bicycle and gets other daily exercise?

GOLF HUFFER

It's true that heavy exercise can be harmful if taken in sudden and occasional doses by a man who doesn't keep in trim.

such as the fellow who sits all week long, then tries to play 18 or 36 holes of golf on Sunday, and begins to huff, puff and get red in the face.

Dear Dr. Molner: You wrote about surgery to cure a bunion and referred to it as "burdette of the big toe." Can such burdette be cured by a hypodermic injection? — D.D.

Cortisone injections can give temporary relief from a bunion, as is the case with bursitis in other joints, but it cannot cure. Reason: When the foot has a bunion, the bone structure has been deformed and the injection cannot correct that.

Separatist Stymies Docks Action

the port of Montreal through the ice season.

Outside the Commons, he said that in Quebec ports, longshoremen are out of work all through the winter.

The work stoppage is the worst in British Columbia's history.

The total impact on labor cannot be estimated, but lumber, grain, and the fruit industry have been dealt crushing blows.

The grain to the Pacific ports has stopped moving, and now is backed up across the Prairies.

DEMAND RECOGNITION

The dispute began on Nov. 17 when 200 longshoremen struck to back demand for recognition as a local of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

There is confusion about what it is, a strike or a lockout. But New Democrat leader Douglas is sure of one thing: "It's a mess."

In the Commons, after the government asked for unanimous consent to hold the special sitting today, Mr. Gregoire made his pitch about the Quebec ports.

"If it is urgent for the west, it is equally urgent for Quebec," he said.

DIFFERENT SITUATION

Mr. McIlraith said the situation was different on the St. Lawrence River, where the ports were open.

If the weather was similar to what it had been over the years, the Quebec ports would be open for "a considerable time."

Last year, ships reached St. Lawrence ports each month of the winter. He could not agree that the St. Lawrence situation required emergency legislation.

He called on Mr. Gregoire to reconsider his position and agree to deal with a matter that all Canadians regarded as an emergency.

JOIN IN APPEAL

Tory House Leader Michael Starr joined in the appeal to Mr. Gregoire, after slamming the government for "fumbling and bumbling" the affair.

Labor Minister Nicholson asked Mr. Gregoire to relent on the grounds of "reason and patriotism."

Further layoffs would take place, he warned, unless there was immediate action.

Mr. Gregoire, and Mr. Douglass, would feel very strongly if a strike on the St. Lawrence was not being resolved by the government because of actions of MPs from the Pacific coast.

"I think he would resent that," Mr. Douglass said.

"The honorable member must understand, equally, that people in other parts of Canada will not feel kindly disposed to any honorable member preventing the government bringing in legislation to solve this serious problem."

He appealed to Mr. Gregoire "in the name of humanity and the welfare of the people on the Pacific coast not to take a step which can only increase bitterness and cause unnecessary hardship."

Conservative Gordon Churchill was next to try. He approved

Mr. Gregoire's suggestion that there should be an opportunity to debate the St. Lawrence situation.

Conservative Starr pointed out that Mr. Gregoire had the government "in the palm of his hand."

Mr. Gregoire again refused, and Mr. McIlraith said he would try again today to "lay before parliament the most important emergency situation facing us at the moment."

LONDON (CP) — Ian Smith secretly and vainly sought Britain's agreement to a scheme whereby one additional seat for the white man would be created each time a Negro got a seat in the Rhodesian legislature so that majority rule could be effectively delayed.

Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden disclosed this in the Commons Wednesday as he sought approval of the government's proposed mandatory United Nations sanctions against Rhodesia after last-ditch efforts to reach a negotiated settlement had collapsed.

He said in opening a two-day debate that Rhodesia had become a country which reminded him of central Europe during the 1930s: The knock on the door at midnight; the swift disappearance of men into jail.

400 IN JAIL.
Now there are more than 400 Rhodesians, most of them Negroes, serving detention sentences of up to five years, without charge or trial. But despite all the depressing events in Rhodesia, the British government had "bent over backwards" trying to reach a settlement.

Bowden said Smith had told him he might have to stage a second rebellion in Rhodesia even if a settlement is signed.

Bowden lifted the secrecy which heretofore shrouded the exchanges he and Wilson had with Smith last week.

"NO ALTERNATIVE"
Bowden said Smith answered: "I should have no alternative."

Wilson earlier disclosed he had warned Smith Britain reserved the right to use force against the rebels if such a situation arose.

The selective, mandatory sanctions which Britain sought would be designed to cause Rhodesia maximum economic damage while safeguarding friendly neighbors, such as Zambia and Malawi.

South Africa Brakes Inflation

PRETORIA (AP) — Drastic new measures to curb inflation were announced Wednesday by the South African government.

A joint statement by Finance Minister Eben Dönges and Economics Minister Nicolaas Dierckx said the government would do everything possible to reduce its expenditures but "with due regard to the overriding requirements of national security."

This was taken to mean that what the governments considers essential defence expenditures would continue and that the country's large police force would be maintained.

The new measures include restrictions on bank credit, relaxation of import controls (intended to cut high prices arising from shortage of supplies), selective price control and earlier repayment of foreign loans.

Embargo Won't Change

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Wednesday he has not seen the list of items included in mandatory United Nations sanctions the British government is seeking to have applied against Rhodesia.

But he told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that he doesn't expect the list will include any items not embargoed by Canada now in voluntary UN and Commonwealth sanctions against the illegal Rhodesian regime of Premier Ian Smith.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked Mr. Martin to check reports that some Canadians sympathetic to Smith have shipped some 1,500 gallons of gasoline to Rhodesia, contravening Canada's embargo.

Mr. Martin said this was the first he had heard of it and he would investigate.

which would give certain countries more power to plug loopholes in existing voluntary sanctions.

But Britain would by no means abdicate responsibility for Rhodesia nor would it transfer this responsibility to the UN.

Bowden praised Rhodesian Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs who had to bear the "indignity and humiliation" thrust on him by rebels. They even had taken Gibbs' transport and "a stooge now rides around in this stolen car."

SIGNED BOOK
When Smith celebrated the first anniversary of his illegal declaration of independence, 3,000 Rhodesians defied Smith by signing the book in Gibbs' office, including some members of the armed forces, Bowden said.

During the 48-hour weekend negotiations between Prime Minister Wilson and Smith aboard the cruiser Tiger, the two men discussed the make-up of a new cabinet under Smith once the rebellion ended. Bowden said it was made clear to Smith that of his 13 cabinet members, six would have to be dropped and five new ones added. The names of the five—three whites and two Africans—were discussed but not disclosed.

Jordan's King Attacked

Syria Will Help Rebels

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftist Syrian President Nureddin Atassi Wednesday offered arms to Jordanian revolutionaries and urged them to overthrow beleaguered King Hussein.

Atassi told thousands of anti-Hussein demonstrators in Damascus that "our weapons are available to those that want them."

"Today is the liberation of Jordan," he said. "Tomorrow is the liberation of Palestine (from Israel)."

SYRIANS EXCITED
Atassi's speech to the banner-waving, slogan-shouting Syrians was broadcast live by Damascus Radio.

The demonstration was called to coincide with the meeting in Cairo of the Arab League Defence Council.

The league ostensibly was considering a unified policy against Israel, but the meeting also was expected to produce harsh denunciations of Hussein.

JORDAN ACCUSED

The Syrian delegate, Foreign Minister Ibrahim Makhou, Wednesday accused Jordan of failing to carry out its league commitments. It was clear he was referring to Hussein and his government when he spoke of Jordan's "reactionary rulers."

Meanwhile, a Palestine Arab Radio broadcast from Cairo reported that the fiery, Soviet-backed Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) had reached agreement with the Syrian government for a "joint struggle and linked sabotage operations inside Israeli territory."

The trouble for Hussein, long brewing, came to the boiling point after Israel launched a massive retaliatory border raid on Nov. 13 against a Jordanian area suspected of harboring terrorists.

HOT LINE

Government sources in Jerusalem said the Israeli government is planning to suggest a "hot line" system with its Arab neighbors — Jordan, Syria, Egypt and Lebanon — to prevent border incidents from escalating into a major war.

Airy Arguments

HAVING FAILED TO persuade his cabinet to accept the terms of the working agreement drawn up by himself and Prime Minister Harold Wilson as a last-minute solution to the Anglo-Rhodesian crisis, Mr. Ian Smith is now desperately seeking to justify its rejection.

He now maintains that the document with which he concurred on board H.M.S. Tiger is unrealistic, irresponsible and unfair to Rhodesia.

Specifically he objects to the provisos calling for the return of full authority as the Queen's representative to the legally appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, and the abandonment of the 1965 constitution which was introduced by his government shortly after its unilateral declaration of independence.

He now labels the first stipulation "unreasonable and repugnant" because the governor would be re-granted the status of commander-in-chief of the Rhodesian armed forces and would be given the power to appoint ministers to any interim government.

His arguments on this score cannot be accepted as valid, for the simple reason that the governor of any British colonial territory enjoys this title and these discretionary powers in the name of the Queen. Indeed, Canada's governor-general retains similar powers that may on occasion be exercised.

For instance, he has the power to dismiss a government for unlawful or unconstitutional actions, thus providing the ultimate safeguard of the constitution. The situation is similar in both Australia and New Zealand.

In turning down the agreement on this basis it therefore appears as though Mr. Smith will not be satisfied with anything less than the granting of special political privileges exceeding even those now enjoyed by the senior and independent member nations of the Commonwealth.

On his second point, Mr. Smith is on even weaker ground. He takes grave exception to the proposed abandonment of the 1965 constitution "before another has been drawn up". This British demand he calls "irresponsible".

Apparently deliberately attempting to mislead his own people on the issue, Mr. Smith failed to mention to them that the 1965 constitution is not recognized as authoritative or lawful by any other nation in the world. Legally the 1961 constitution — which he scrapped last year — still stands.

Therefore there can be no occasion arising out of the agreement which would leave Rhodesia without a legal constitution.

Such are Mr. Smith's airy complaints against the proposed settlement.

Rankers Rebel

THE situation has been rectified but only because war veterans of Hong Kong still in the forces protested against what they rightly regarded as "humiliating" and in the circumstances unjust to them.

These non-officers are members of an official government delegation now in that city on a 25th anniversary pilgrimage to honor Canada's war dead of the fateful engagement of Christmas Day, 1941. Some of them spent years in Japanese POW camps after the fall of that island fortress.

And because they were rankers they were allocated billets in barracks while officers and civilian members of the delegation was assigned to what is described as a "swank" hotel on a corner where the Canadians had fought in defence of the colony.

And one of these rankers, a sergeant, was the son of CSM J. R. Osborn who won a posthumous Victoria Cross for his gallantry at Hong Kong, and he was chosen to lay a wreath at a commemorative ceremony this week. His feelings can be imagined.

This distinction had earlier been manifest, when at Honolulu en route to Hong Kong the non-officers had been billeted at what is reported as a "bug-infested" U.S. barracks while other delegates enjoyed the comforts of a "posh" Waikiki beach hotel. It was repetition of this treatment that was to be their lot at Hong Kong that caused strenuous protest by the veterans of that battle.

In the result the billeting arrangements were changed and the men were given hotel space for their stay.

Social separation, based on rank, is part of the military menage, but on an occasion such as this pilgrimage there was no warrant for the distinction. The incident reflects no credit on the government officials responsible for the arrangements of this pilgrimage.

Luminous Licences

ALMOST A QUARTER of British Columbia's road accidents last year were rear-end collisions, and the province's motor vehicles superintendent, Mr. Ray Hadfield, has suggested that if manufacturers were to include reflectorized rear strips in their new car designs, the toll would be reduced.

"Tail-gating" — following the car ahead too closely — obviously is the main cause of the rear-end crashes, and for this, law enforcement and driver education are the only remedies. But Mr. Hadfield says he has no doubt in his mind that the reflector strips would be a useful factor in preventing accidents.

Perhaps equally effective would be luminous licence plates. But here the superintendent has an objection. The 800,000 or more plates that will be issued next year in B.C. would cost the government $704,000 instead of $176,000 if they were of the luminous kind, which cost 66 cents a set more to produce.

Mr. Hadfield also makes the good point that the reflecting surfaces should be in a place where they would get less abuse than a licence plate — although there is the off-setting circumstance that owners are required by law to keep their plates clean enough to be legible, while mud and dirt may legally accumulate in other places.

But, if luminous plates would provide even a little more protection from being rammed from behind, and if the provincial government would be aghast at the idea of spending an extra half million for this purpose, how many motorists would really mind paying another 65 cents for their licences? How many, for that matter, can remember to the cent what they paid last January or February?

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

By TOM TAYLOR

PROBABLY most of you have a ready address for Christmas mail by this time, and without giving a thought to your — handwriting.

Will the recipients be able to read it?

Handwriting has a funny side to it, meaning not humorous but peculiar. Youthful years are spent acquiring the mechanics of putting pen or pencil to paper, and then later on, left to the freedom of unregulated calligraphy, the result could be as though a hen had dipped its feet in ink and stomped across the letter sheet.

Some folks, apparently, think a slap-dash signature to be a mark of distinction, the kind that comes from chains of the commonplace. You know, the sort of stroke that says about almost: "I could do better than this if I wanted, but this demonstrates the liberties a good penman can take when he's master of his art."

Business tycoons seem prone to this affliction.

It is not so bad when a letter is typewritten and only the signature is the puzzle. You'd be surprised at the number of missives reaching a newspaper office that simply prostrate the recipient. Some of them could take an hour to decipher, and then only with the aid of a magnifying glass and, perhaps, a couple of aspirins.

And, presumably they were sent so they could be read.

It must have been a ghastly job being a printer in olden days. It strikes me, when everything was written by hand. Old-timers who remember those diabolical times still shudder when they talk about the scripts they had to handle.

Even today the odd bit of copy is handwritten — an item from outside if it is passably legible — but penmanship finds little favor against the typewriter.

Typewriters are not so common as to be in every household, of course, and anyway most people prefer that their personal correspondence be handwritten. It seems more intimate.

Now that's fine when it's your own family you're dealing with. You know every twist in your own script, the quirk she has of looping her e's around the neck of her t's, for example, or her insistence that no i ever needs a dot.

You learn by experience to fill in the gaps.

It's a different proposition when you get letters from people whose handwriting is unfamiliar.

It is all the more strange when you think of the care some people take with composition of their letters. Some mail reaching this writer's desk is full of (apparently) interesting observation and comment, and yet half of it may be useless because it's unreadable.

Which is a pity.

This column can do its share of careless calligraphy, unfortunately, and without the absolution granted the eminent.

I have read that General Eisenhower's handwriting is so bad that once when he had occasion to write to the King and was told he'd have to do it by hand, he said despairingly: "What's the use? He won't be able to read it anyway."

That's of no help to the average person. An Eisenhower can afford to write a poor hand, just as a millionaire can afford to stroll the streets in shabby clothes. The few of us can't.

Perhaps we should do something about it, especially at Christmas time.

Java: Indonesia's Biggest Problem

Prestige, Not Production, First With a Proud Race

THE real problem of Indonesia is Java.

Java is the swollen centre of an empire that on the whole is not overpopulated. Only one of Indonesia's 13,677 islands (6,044 are inhabited) and occupying not more than 7 per cent of the territory, Java nonetheless contains more than two-thirds of Indonesia's population.

Indonesia now has about 104 million people. Java embraces more than 70 million of them. Java's population has increased 20-fold in 150 years.

Java was once an exporter of rice to the entire archipelago. This economic importance made it the base for Dutch colonial administration and manufacturing.

Today its plantations are run down, its factories seldom work and its rice fields cannot cope with the population.

Indonesia now has become the world's biggest importer of rice.

Java's teeming population is not the only thing that has made it Indonesia's major problem.

Javanese mysticism and superstition and Javanese "imperialism" fostered by the island's dominant economic position were trouble spots even during the Dutch administration.

We started a week-long tour of Java early one morning. The sun was just beginning to rise behind low clouds and Jakarta were already going to work by bicycle and bus.

I had engaged a driver, who seemed to handle the new Fiat sedan with pride as well as ability, and a guide-interpreter. We reached Bogor, the summer capital, within two hours.

Deer were grazing on the lawn of President Sukarno's palace there. He flies to Bogor nearly every weekend by his private helicopter.

The rest of the first day's ride to the Samudra Beach Hotel on the south coast, and the second day's travel through Sukabumi to Bandung, were pleasant.

Over all the miles of remarkably good roads, the sights were those of a traveler has come to expect from the airline and travel folders.

The rice paddies and fields of other crops were lush and green. The people looked well-fed and seemed happy to be some distance from the chaos that is Jakarta.

On the third day, winding down from the Bandung plateau across the imaginary boundary that separates West and Central Java, the scenery started to change.

For one thing, the road was terrible. We had been warned that the "southern route" to Jogjakarta was "very bad indeed." I would correct that to read "very good in places" but terrible most of the way.

I have never seen such a collection of potholes, ruts and axle-breaking roadways anywhere.

Another indication that something was afoot was the fact that we were stopped at least once every 40 minutes by military or police sentries throughout the morning.

This was during the period of extreme tension just before the former foreign minister, Subandrio, went on trial. Apparently there were fears that Communist Party remnants or other oppositionists would try to go to Jakarta to cause trouble.

The third, and most shocking, revelation on the descent from the Bandung plateau was the sad state of agriculture.

For miles the fields were dry stubble. They bore little resemblance to the lush countryside of West Java.

Primitive methods of cultivation, that had been sufficient for the earlier small population, simple reason that no Indonesian came forward "to replace the disgraced Chinese in its vital role of distributor, collector and banker for the village."

Luethy says that for the Javanese aristocracy, the unpardonable limit to their honor is to have been "dominated for more than three centuries by a little merchant nation (Holland), remote and barbaric, showing only economic interest in the Indies and devoid of any sense of prestige."

"Retrospective puzzlement with this absurd accident of history is genuine and lasting among the Javanese," Luethy writes.

"Prestige" emerges as a key factor in this absurd accident of history. People of the other islands are not so bogged down by gods and spirits and mystics as are the Javanese.

Sukarno is a Javanese (most Indonesian names with an "o" ending mark their owners as Javanese) as is the present power General Suharto.

But current Foreign Minister Adam Malik is a Sumatran and is characteristically very direct to his language.

One diplomat used to Javanese obsequiousness said of Sumatran Malik: "He's almost too good to be true. How long will he last?"

The "prestige" angle shows up in Sukarno's conduct or misconduct of government affairs.

Many scholars who have studied the Javanese say this factor is the same one that makes Javanese care little about repairing a car or an airplane.

"The main thing is possessing the automobile," one Western diplomat here explained. "The Javanese gains prestige from the fact of owning such a modern machine. The fact that it doesn't run is a detail beneath his concern."

This is demonstrated, the scholars say, in the way Sukarno boasted of having the world's third or fourth largest air force (exaggerated, but didn't take steps to see that more of its planes were operational).

Luethy points out that following every attack on Chinese traders they are eventually allowed to come back for the Defence Minister Rebuked For 'Unforgivable' Gibe

PERHAPS the most unfortunate aspect of the current controversy over unification of the armed forces is that, from the first, it has been a matter of partisan politics. It is a very real tragedy that matters concerning the defence of this nation, and involving the lives of generations yet unborn, are being resolved as purely political issues by politicians unqualified to assess the factors involved.

If they were permitted to voice their personal opinions, few Canadians, even in the House of Commons, would choose to have so vital a matter as the form of the nation's defence force determined irreversibly without first permitting the qualified professionals involved — the heads of naval, air and land forces who have been responsible for formulating the nation's defences — to offer their advice. They might choose to override some professional objections raised, or question the soundness of some professional opinion, but they would certainly want to hear from the professional experts who are aware of the threat this country might have to face, and who understand the choices open to us in attempting to cope with this challenge.

Yet because the present government has chosen to place its political future on Defence Minister Hellyer's decision to unify all three forces, with all the unanswered questions that no revolutionary a decision implies, no such opportunity to submit the matter to expert study is to be given. It could be that Mr. Hellyer's decision to unify might be the correct one, although the weight of qualified opinion would not seem to indicate so. But right or wrong, the taking of so cataclysmic a decision without both debate and study is surely not only dangerous in principle, but morally wrong in practice.

The real tragedy of the present political controversy, apart from the incalculable harm which may be done to the nation as a whole, is the terrible injustice being done the professional officers whose objections to head-long unification have been called down upon them the wrath of Mr. Hellyer and the ridicule of the publicity machine which he controls, and which reaches into most of the major

Nuclear Rivalries Invite Explosion

THE nuclear giants, once described by Robert Oppenheimer as two scorpions in a bottle, are squaring off for another round in the nuclear arms race. That is the reality behind the hopeful talk about easing tensions and such minuscule achievements as the recent agreement for a direct commercial air route between Moscow and New York.

Of all the decisions Secretary of Defence Robert S. McNamara has had to help shape in his six years in the Pentagon none is more momentous than the one with which he now is wrestling. That is whether to give the go-ahead for construction of an anti-ballistic missile system. The price tag is in terms that have come to carry no meaning at all — $30 billion or $40 billion.

Everything goes into this hopper from rugged partisan politics to scientific and technical calculations so far out that only a few scientists comprehend them. On both sides of the great divide the basic component is fear and with it the lingering belief that absolute safety is still possible in a world in which rival nation states are armed with nuclear weapons.

Recent history is about to be repeated as part of the exercise. With their new-found muscle the Republicans talk of making the "anti-ballistic missile gap" a major charge leading up to 1968. Playing on mass fears, it could be the dominant theme of the next presidential campaign. Already, willing prophets are sounding the alarm.

In 1960 the Democrats used the same tactic on the "missile gap." Prominent senators on the armed services committee, such as Stuart Symington of Missouri, repeatedly trumpeted the call to arms. In January, 1959, Symington told the Senate: "Far from planning to close the current missile gap, the administration is actually allowing it to widen — and this despite all the vague reassurances we have heard to the contrary in past years and again recently."

The gap was called disastrous. Leaks from the Pentagon and Capitol Hill suggested that America's whole retaliatory capacity could be wiped out by a Soviet first strike. Democrats poured shame and scorn on the Eisenhower administration for permitting the lag and thereby inviting annihilation.

McNamara had no part in that controversy. He was then nominally a Republican living in Ann Arbor, Mich., executive vice-president of the Ford Motor Co. As he has several times said, three weeks after he became secretary of defence he had established beyond a doubt that the "missile gap" was a myth.

But the propagation of that myth was the reason for a step-up in missile production. It was a big boost for the missile industry. As of today the combined deterrent force — Minute Men, Polaris submarines, manned bombers — gives the United States an estimated superiority on the order of four or five to one.

This is, of course, quite well known to the Soviets. It may help to explain their decision to build an anti-ballistic missile defence. That is to say, it may have turned the arms race up still another notch.

McNamara in a press conference at the Johnson ranch revealed that the Soviets were installing such a defence. This seemed like inviting trouble, since it would involve the kind of crying of doom in the "anti-ballistic missile gap" already begun. But the secretary was sure that leaks from one source or another would exaggerate the situation and he, therefore, wanted to anticipate this with a statement of what he believes from all available

Forced Feeding Formula

AT Villeneuve-de-Marsay, France, on every Wednesday from now to Christmas this village of 1,800 population in the coastal region of southwest France will be stuffed with small fatted and guinea fow. Still others stride into towns on foot with a fattened goose under each arm.

Up to eight tons of geese and duck liver are snapped up in a mere 10 minutes at the market and find their way to the best restaurants and the most exalted tables in the world.

It takes about six months to fatten a goose's liver enough to make the best paste which may bring $7.50 a pound. For 22 days of this period, the geese are forced with grain to enlarge the liver.

At a hardware stall in the Villeneuve market a man does a brisk trade in those horribly turning funnels which are thrust down the birds' throats to allow a steady, unimpeded stream of grain to slip down. The geese are then aided with their digestion by enzymes which are sold under the appropriate trade name of "Savagose."

I tried to buy some Savagose at a local store but the man looked at me suspiciously, recognizing instantly that I was not a specialist crammer.

"What do you want for it?" he inquired.

"For my liver," I replied.

He was not amused.

Windsor, as King, Sought Peace Pact

By THOMAS A. REEDY, from London

Mussolini

Documents made public Wednesday show that King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor, tried in 1936 to bring Britain, France, Germany and Italy together in the cause of peace.

Italy's Benito Mussolini disapproved the new but uncrowned king. The fascist dictator felt he was "too democratic."

A 1,208-page volume of documents on German policy issued by the British government covers the period from March 5 to Oct. 31, 1936, when the former Prince of Wales was in fact the king and was making his personal decision to abdicate in order to marry American Wallis Warfield Simpson, now the Duchess of Windsor.

The papers showed that Edward was intimately linked with developments after Hitler reoccupied the Rhineland, scrapping the Locarno Treaty and raising grave threats of war.

Without ruling on the merits of the Rhineland crisis, Edward told the Italian ambassador to London, Count Grandi, that for peace in Europe it was essential that Germany and Italy be given full access to colonial markets.

This should be done, he told the Italians, by establishing a policy of complete co-operation and understanding among Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

Mussolini was reported to have been impressed by the conversation between Edward and Count Grandi.

Windsor

His comment that the British monarch was "troppo democratico" — too democratic — probably was inspired by Edward's strong hints that Britain's parliamentary system meant the government was not in his hands but that he could exert influence from time to time.

Hitler's first foreign minister, Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, was represented in the file with a marginal note confirming Edward's endorsement of colonial markets for Germany.

The documents include a dispatch to Berlin by the London correspondent of a Berlin newspaper which said Edward urged his ministers to scrap arguments about the "breach of law" in the Rhineland occupation and get on with practical discussion of Hitler's proposals for peace in Europe.

Meanwhile, Leopold Van Hoesch, the German ambassador to London, was telling his foreign office in Berlin that such men as Winston Churchill had "painted the German menace in the blackest of colors."

Von Hoesch wrote that France — not Germany — was responsible for war nerves.

Other British documents in the file demonstrated Hitler's determination to proceed with rearmament and to have the German economy geared for war in four years' time.

Massive Tie-Up Silences Clogged Ports

CP, from Vancouver

An unnatural silence hangs over snow and rain-dampened ports in British Columbia as Ottawa moves to settle a labor dispute which has paralyzed the shipping industry since Nov. 17.

More than 6,000 longshoremen, teamsters, woodworkers and others are without work as 82 ships wait to be loaded or unloaded at waterfronts throughout the province.

Export grain shipments are at a standstill. Railways put an embargo on prairie grain shipments Dec. 1 when there were more than 2,000 loaded grain cars in Vancouver and several thousand more were spotted along mainlines in B.C. and Alberta.

Two ships with cargoes of perishable Japanese mandarin oranges are tied up in Vancouver. Three other ships with oranges, part of a $2,300,000 shipment, have been diverted to U.S. ports for unloading.

Twenty-five of the 45 idle ships in Vancouver area are waiting to load grain, most of them bound for China, Japan and Russia.

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, president of the National and Saskatchewan Farmers Unions, warns the delay could affect future overseas sales of grain.

Idle ships are costing their owners from $2,000 to $5,000 a day.

The dispute, a long time in coming to a head, is between longshoremen and the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association which represents stevedoring companies.

About 200 of approximately 250 longshoremen want collective bargaining rights. They set up local 514 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Employers said the foremen are management personnel who make from $12,000 to $16,000 a year and are not eligible for union bargaining. This stand was upheld twice by the Canadian Labor Relations Board.

When longshoremen refused to cross picket lines set up by the foremen, employers obtained a supreme court injunction which removed the lines.

Then employers claimed longshoremen were slowing down on the job and they started firing longshoremen.

On Nov. 29 employers stopped hiring longshoremen and said the ban would remain until the union guaranteed normal performance.

The union replied that any slowdown was due to lack of supervision caused by the foremen's strike.

Longshoremen offered to load grain and unload Japanese oranges but this was rejected by employers.

Edward Strang, president of the Employers' Association, said companies are prepared to order out longshoremen if the union gives an assurance "all ships will be worked normally and in accordance with the collective agreement."

The foremen accepted a proposed settlement formula worked out during the week-end by Labor Minister J. R. Nicholson. But it was rejected by stevedoring companies.

Although details of the formula were not revealed, Strang called it a primitive form of collective bargaining to which his group is opposed.

The formula would have given foremen the right to form an association outside the International Longshoremen's Union.

Now the federal government is proposing to run the waterfronts through a public administrator.

In the meantime, northern U.S. West Coast ports are enjoying a bonanza. Seattle reported 49 ships in Puget Sound last weekend. Cargo of Canada-bound ships diverted to the U.S. are moved by truck or rail to Vancouver.

CURRENT EVENTS

By M. D. LIPTON

When the United Nations General Assembly boldly voted 114-2 to wrest South-West Africa from a defiant South Africa, battle lines were drawn for a campaign that could claim the life of the world body.

In 1920, South Africa got "South-West" from the League of Nations to "promote to the utmost" the well-being of the 525,000 residents of the former German colony.

Instead of fulfilling the terms of the mandate, South Africa, according to other African states has converted the territory into a vast concentration camp of forced labor for the great majority of its indigenous inhabitants.

United States ambassador Arthur Goldberg referred to South-West Africa as a place "where one race holds another in intolerable subjection under the false name of apartheid."

Charging flagrant misuse of the territory, the UN, in passing the aforementioned resolution, provided for a committee to study ways of making good the eviction order.

The Pretoria government threatens to leave the international organization over the issue. Prime Minister Vorster's regime — claims that about nine ethnic groups with neither common language nor religion occupy South-West Africa.

They have a lengthy record of internecine warfare. To grant each man a vote would inevitably mean domination by the strongest tribe. Chaos would result.

We will "resist with all the power at our disposal" any measure to pry away the 318,000 square-mile mandated land.

By next April, a special General Assembly must be convened to hear recommendations of practical steps toward eventual self-determination and independence for the territory. African delegates are then expected to sanctions and a blockade of demand at least economic sanctions and a blockade of South Africa.

Britain's Dilemma

For such a showdown to succeed, British participation is essential, but it is doubtful if London would engage in a world-wide boycott. For, by so doing, she would severely jeopardize her economy, now partly dependent on foreign trade with Pretoria. Britain abstained from the original UN vote on the matter.

A military confrontation is ruled out. The United States, the Soviet Union, France and Britain are reluctant to involve themselves in such a course. The African nations are no match for South Africa's superior armed might.

The UN has issued a challenge that is causing serious misgivings in many quarters. Effective action appears impossible.

Inaction would undermine the peacekeeping association's authority. Thereafter, its resolutions would be regarded with scorn, its charter rendered meaningless.

When Italy flouted the League of Nations with impunity by invading Abyssinia in 1935, it marked the beginning of the League's demise. Does the same fate await the UN?

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

The fear is that this issue may cause the United Nations to deteriorate into an ineffectual talk shop. However, if one small nation can defy the will of the world community, is the UN now really effective?

One editor states, "The African nations, most of them young, sensitive and struggling, have more to lose than most from deterioration of the UN." If this is true, should the Africans have postponed a confrontation with Pretoria? Is such a request reasonable?

If all the major powers were determined to enforce UN sanctions by military means, it is likely that a successful blockade could be imposed.

Would such a use of force be advisable?

Rhodesia Optimistic, But— Smith Whistles in the Dark

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
From London

Rebel Premier Ian Smith and his supporters feel Rhodesia can survive compulsory sanctions just as it coped with voluntary sanctions during the last year.

They can take considerable comfort from unofficial calculations in British newspapers. High British government officials are known to feel that Tory newspapers are taking an overly gloomy view of how the sanctions are likely to boomerang against Britain.

But the disquieting fact is that no one can produce figures sketching out with any certainty the results of the mandatory sanctions sought by United Nations selective by Britain.

Prime Minister Wilson, who probably will never live down his prediction of last January that voluntary economic sanctions would floor Smith in "weeks rather than months," is talking of a long campaign this time.

There still are doubts about the imposition and application of a compulsory oil embargo — the one sanction that if rigorously applied might, indeed, topple Smith within weeks rather than months or years.

After one year of sanctions, Rhodesia's national income was estimated to have dropped by less than 10 per cent. Sanctions appear to have cut exports from £150,000,000 to not more than £100,000,000. But Rhodesia held its imports to £80,000,000 — two-thirds the normal figure.

Rhodesia's success was partly explained by a buoyant world market for its minerals — especially asbestos, chrome, copper and iron ore. Another big factor was the failure of neighboring Zambia to find another source of supply for manufactured items and of coal for its copper industry.

Smith must face such questions as these: How long can the government go on customizing tobacco and sugar without bringing on inflation? Will the business community — which largely opposed his unilateral declaration of independence — turn against the government if conditions tighten? Will the whites become restless as conditions become more stringent and the struggle drags on?

It is argued that Rhodesia, thanks to fighting sanctions, now is self-sufficient in food and rapidly becoming that way in a wide range of consumer goods. It is "leaner and tougher" now than a year ago.

The big question remains South Africa's attitude. It seems to be generally assumed that South Africa will sacrifice British trade to back Smith in a showdown. But this would be a painful decision since Britain, besides selling to South Africa, provides a big market for South African goods.

This trade is conducted under the old preference system although South Africa bolted the Commonwealth in 1961. British trade to South Africa, although important, accounts for only five per cent of Britain's total exports.

There is, however, another ominous aspect.

So far, Smith's domestic success has made it comparatively easy for South Africa to give him support without political involvement. The two countries do differ, legally at least, on the racial issue.

Yet South Africa — and Portugal, as well, through its African territories — has been moving toward a deeper commitment to Rhodesia. Policy differences may in time be bridged by necessity and then to overthrow Smith would mean overthrowing the white rulers of a huge region of southern Africa.

We've Upset Both Chinas

By DAVE McINTOSH
From Hong Kong

Indignation has been the reaction by both Nationalist and Communist Chinese to Canada's "One China, One Government" proposal in the United Nations.

A left-wing newspaper here observed acerbically that on the basis of the Canadian proposal, External Affairs Minister Martin should be sponsoring UN membership for Quebec.

The comment indicates that, if nothing else, the Chinese in both camps are well aware of Canadian moves to obtain a UN seat for Communist China while permitting Nationalist China to retain its membership as the representative of Formosa.

Overlooked here, however, is the fact that Canada put forward the suggestion only as an interim solution.

Both the Nationalists and Communists look on Formosa as part of China proper. Thus Canada has made both sides angry at the same time.

Base Metals Produce Mining Boom

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The past year has been the most eventful in the long history of Yukon mining according to Charles J. Brown, geological engineer of the White Pass and Yukon Corporation.

Mr. Brown told the Northwest Mining Association Convention in Spokane that recent developments in open pit mining and improved access and transportation are enabling the large tonnage base-metal properties to become economic.

In earlier mining experience, Yukon mining companies confined themselves to precious metals because base metals were geographically uneconomical.

Now with gold-silver operations running out, and in some cases closing down, the Yukon is switching to other forms of mining.

Early next spring, New Imperial Mines will be producing a copper concentrate in quantity from its holdings near Whitehorse.

A year later Casstar Asbestos will be getting its Clinton Creek asbestos operation into production.

This is 40 miles northwest of Dawson and Mr. Brown says it is the most important mining development in the Yukon in recent years.

It will cost $21,000,000 to put into production.

Great new lead-zinc copper reserves have been drawn in many mining companies to the Van-gorda area, northeast of Whitehorse, while iron ore deposits in the Snake River area and Tungsten on the Klondike River in the Watson Lake area have given the world a new appreciation of the mineral potential of the Yukon.

Giant Block Traded

What is said to be the biggest block sale of shares ever made on the New York Stock Exchange was effected Wednesday when nearly 50,000 shares of Alcan Aluminum changed hands at 26 1/2 (U.S.) for a total sale value of more than $130,000,000.

The shares in the big Canadian aluminum company are understood to have been taken up largely by institutional buyers. The investment banking firm of Bear Stearns and Company underwrote the huge deal.

Some of the shares in the U.S. deal are understood to have found a home in Canada, and dealers said they were impressed with the way the big offering had been absorbed and the fact that the stock continued to rise after the deal had been completed.

Montreal Trust has been awarded by the Ontario Supreme Court an interim payment of $1,000,000 for its services as receiver-manager of the insolvent Atlantic Acceptance Corporation during the period June 17, 1965 to Dec. 31, 1965.

Clarkson Co. Ltd. of Toronto was also awarded $750,000 as agent for the Montreal Trust. Recovery of Atlantic assets was originally estimated at about $8,500,000.

"For personal reasons" W. N. Hall has tendered his resignation as president and director of Domtar Limited, and his place will be taken by T. N. Beaupre, of Vancouver, who already holds the position of Domtar chairman.

Mr. Beaupre will move to Montreal to take over his dual role of the big pulp, paper, building materials and chemical company.

John D. Wants Look at Notes

Ottawa (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker gave notice Wednesday that he wants to see notes exchanged between the Canadian and United States governments on the question of a U.S.-owned Canadian bank.

Mr. Diefenbaker placed a notice asking for copies of the notes on Wednesday's Commons order paper.

The proposal by the Canadian government to limit the growth of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, owned by First National City Bank of U.S., is reported to have drawn sharp protests from Washington.

Cash For Builders

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Wednesday more government money will be available next year for home construction than in 1966.

He also said he hopes the recent increase in Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation interest rates and proposed changes in the Bank Act will provide more private funds for house construction.

Mr. Sharp was replying to Social Credit Leader Thompson, who asked whether the government would make more money available for mortgages. Mr. Thompson noted that the U.S. government recently released an additional $750,000,000 for home building.

Landymore Fires Broadside at Unification

most important duty it has been my privilege to discharge."

Full unification of the three services was ineffective, uneconomic, destructive and "change for the sake of change."

Admiral Landymore's remarks are contained in a 29-page brief which he prepared for presentation to the Common defence committee. He said his prepared testimony would be "irrelevant" after second reading of the bill in the Commons — approval in principle of legislation which would unite the army, navy and air force into a single force.

"The public has been duped into believing unification is the end all and be all of integration," the admiral says in his brief. "I predict it will be the end of effective defence for Canada and I don't envy you (the committee) your task of explaining your mistake if you support it."

He said "it is not too late to call a halt to the folly."

The brief calls on the defence committee to:

• "Demand that all processes of unification, however unimportant they may appear to be, be halted immediately."

• "Start a thorough and searching inquiry. Demand to know the full implications. Demand to see a complete study of the plan before it's undertaken, before it becomes law."

• "Should you be unable to see your way clear to halting unification altogether before proceeding with the final legislation, I urge you to include as a condition of the legislation that all serving personnel be allowed the right to decide whether or not they will join the unified force."

Admiral Landymore says the volunteer manpower of the armed services "is our greatest resource."

"This shrinkage (of manpower) is largely due to misplaced enthusiasm for the untimely experiment of unification."

The brief, written in both English and French, concludes with the words:

"If I have failed to impress you with the potential danger to the country's defence of following the minister's headlong rush to full unification, then I have failed. In the most important duty it has been my privilege to discharge."

"Everyone I know who has done any thinking on the subject has come to the conclusion it would be a mistake to unify now; that even five years from now might be too soon — and furthermore that never is probably the solution."

He says claims that the middle-ranks support the unification plan amount to "sheer conjecture for certain no one in the commands has been asked his views. In Halifax... officers of all ranks made it perfectly clear this was not their point of view."

"Every aspect of full unification seems to be to be less effective, less economic, destructive in morale and amounts to a change for the sake of change."

He said officers and men now serving voluntarily joined "only one of the three services."

If a single service becomes law and every officer and man is transferred into it with no choice in the matter, you can be assured the servicemen won't like it."

"While conscription is perhaps not a completely accurate word to use under these circumstances, it is the word the servicemen will use."

If servicemen are given the

settlement of disputes that endanger peace, would grow. The present division into three services, he said, imposes restrictions on growth.

These should be moved in the interest of the most effective defence force and of the men and women who belong to it.

The bill, he said, has nothing to do with the question of naval forces, land forces, air forces or even space forces.

It has to do with management, planning, training, support and capacity of the force to adjust to changing requirements. And the ability of the force to provide meaningful, challenging and rewarding careers for service personnel.

"All of these needs," Mr. Hellyer said, "are enhanced by unification."

He said that, in approaching the problem of defence, the facts are clear and incontrovertible:

"Either the defence budget had to be substantially increased or substantial cost cuts had to be made."

The integration-unification process will make important cost cuts, he added.

The concept of a single service, he said, raises questions of identity, of spirit and esprit de corps.

But he predicted that, in the single force, "We will continue to have intense loyalties to the fighting units and broader associations within it."

Cost to Child Sooke Fear

By NANCY BROWN

New schoolrooms in the Sooke school district will cost the average homeowner about 75 cents a month, if a $2,165,200 referendum is approved Saturday.

Board chairman John Baranus said Wednesday the cost of the referendum has been estimated at less than 1 1/2 mills above the existing 3.04 mills for capital construction.

He expected the amount to be reduced as new businesses and houses are added to the assessment roll.

BOARD CONCERN

"It is the cost of not having enough classrooms and adequate facilities and equipment that concerns the board. What is the cost to a child, to a parent and to the community of an inadequate or poor education? Dropouts and school failures are often the result of poor schools," said Mr. Baranus.

He said the referendum is necessary to cope with the annual increase in school population, 11 per cent this year.

MUST ACT NOW

The Sooke district is becoming more urban, and the board feels it has to act now to obtain land for future buildings, or pay exorbitant prices later.

The referendum sets aside $154,200 for land purchase at 14 sites.

New classrooms are required by most schools in the district, and under the referendum 48 classrooms and other teaching areas will be built.

TWO REPLACEMENTS

The cost of new construction will be $1,894,000, including replacement of the 20-year-old "temporary" army huts at Fitzbeth Fisher and Edward Milne high schools.

Equipment for the new areas will cost $130,700, and $186,300 has been set aside for plans and supervision.

Mr. Baranus noted a new two-classroom school is to be built for retarded children.

"There are enough pupils for two teachers, but they have to work in one borrowed classroom in the John Stubbs school in Belmont Park," he said.

"Even this one room will not be available after June 30 and the board feels obligated to provide proper accommodation."

Mr. Baranus said the provincial government would share the cost of a two-classroom school on Langford elementary grounds.

Christmas Saved At Sea

Passengers travelling to Australia on the P & O liner Oriana this month came close to losing Christmas Day.

The ship is due in Vancouver Sunday to pick up 1,000 passengers and sail at 6 p.m. Monday for Australia by way of California ports, Hawaii, Suva and Auckland.

She was due to cross the International Dateline Dec. 25, thereby losing a day, but the captain, Commodore J. L. Dunkley, decided to move the date line temporarily and eliminate Dec. 25 instead.

Cool Cinderella Too Hot for BBC

LONDON (AP) — The BBC has banned a contemporary Cinderella in a miniskirt and a sex-starved Prince Charming who strangles her at midnight from its Christmas television schedule.

The BBC cancelled plans to put on 'Almost Cinderella', a version of the fairy tale by playwright Dennis Potter. "If I can arrange my career so that I never have to write for BBC television again, I intend to do so," said Potter.

"I wanted to bring out the impact of the story on adults. I saw Cinderella as a modern girl in a miniskirt, pretty contemptuous of everything. She doesn't even really want to go to the ball. "Prince Charming comes out as a somewhat unstable character who has sexual problems because he cannot find satisfaction with other girls. He's a playboy and not a pleasant one."

"The story ends at midnight, and we use the cinematic clichés of Hollywood. Prince Charming, whom we have seen under great emotional stress, begins to strangle Cinderella in a very stylized way as the clock strikes."

"It is part of the mockery of the cliché of love at first sight."

Two weeks ago the BBC warned that a "psychological" version of Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland which it will show Dec. 28 might upset children. It will be telecast late in the evening.

THE MISERY OF PSORIASIS

New medicated formula guarantees relief from the itching and scaling of psoriasis...or your money back!

Psoriasis may first appear as a crusty patch on your skin or scalp. It's misery if psoriasis spreads and leaves your skin rough and scaly and if medications you've tried fail to bring the relief you want.

New Tegrin's medicated formula helps give you three-way relief:

1. Speeds soothing relief from itching.
2. Works fast to remove scales.
3. Continued use on affected areas helps keep scales from coming back.

Tegrin cream leaves your skin clearer, helps restore natural smoothness. And it's not greasy...no medical smell.

Here are the 13 spots where psoriasis most often starts:

- | | |
|---------------|--------------|
| (1) scalp | (8) back |
| (2) neck | (9) mid arms |
| (3) shoulders | (10) lower |
| (4) elbows | (11) thighs |
| (5) arms | (12) legs |
| (6) hands | (13) feet |
| (7) chest | |

TEGRIN™

Now for scalp psoriasis sufferers—New Tegrin® Medicated Shampoo
New Tegrin Medicated Shampoo is especially formulated for use with Tegrin Cream to give you fast, effective relief from the itching and scaling of scalp psoriasis. It washes away loose psoriasis scales, leaves hair cleaner and healthier-looking. Use new Tegrin Medicated Shampoo and Tegrin Cream. Both are guaranteed to bring the relief you want—or your money back!

Prairies Probe Living Cost

WINNIPEG (CP) — A tri-province royal commission with wide-ranging powers to investigate the high cost of living on the Prairies has been established by the governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Premier Ross Thatcher announced that his government had passed an order-in-council authorizing participation and Attorney-General Sterling Lyon made a similar announcement in the Manitoba legislature. No Alberta statement has yet been made.

MAJOR COMPLAINTS

Terms of reference permit the three-member commission to study price increases and major increase complaints; to enquire into contributing factors; to investigate effects of price increases on living standards and to make appropriate recommendations.

In answer to opposition questions, Mr. Lyon said the terms are broad enough to allow the commissioners to investigate "any aspects of any purchase required by a person living on the Prairies."

JUDGE, PROFESSOR

Commissioners are Judge Mary J. Batten of Saskatoon, a district court judge; Edwin J. Madill of Calgary and Dr. Shirley M. Weber, assistant professor of foods and nutrition at the University of Manitoba.

Premier Thatcher said it is believed the formation of a single commission to investigate a situation in three provinces is a first in Canada.

The commissioners, he added, will be asked to consider the role that wage increases—such as those awarded dock and railway workers, have on prices.

MIXED APPROVAL

Announcement of the commission drew mixed approval. Leaders of women's food protest groups in Calgary and Regina said they approved in principle, but would have preferred a nationwide commission.

Saskatchewan's attorney general, D. V. Heald, main organizing force behind the tri-province commission, said his department has not reached conclusions as to what powers the provincial government has to act on prices and living costs. He said the government would wait

Doctor Winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — A psychiatrist played a grim battle of wits with a patient Tuesday and won. The stake was a loaded revolver.

The patient, a 16-year-old student, walked into the psychiatrist's office with the weapon about 4 p.m. and for more than an hour sat facing the doctor, with the pistol near his hand.

Gradually, the doctor calmed him down, gave him a couple of tranquilizers, and eventually was able to alert police.

While doctor and patient played checkers, Constable P. A. Grant of the city police walked quietly into the psychiatrist's office, stole up behind the youth and seized the gun.

The youth was transferred to hospital for observation. The psychiatrist declined to discuss his ordeal or tell how he contacted police.

Leaflets Made Converts

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese officials released details of the mass surrender of Viet Cong guerrillas early this week.

They said the number of Viet Cong who defected had reached 67 and that 3,100 farmers and villagers left the Viet Cong-controlled area for government protection following leaflet drops and propaganda broadcasts telling them to evacuate their homes because of coming U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes to root out the Viet Cong.

SAIGON (UPI) — One of the killers of South Vietnamese political leader Tran Van Van admitted Wednesday he was a Viet Cong agent on a specific mission to assassinate the anti-Communist official, police reported.

Vo Van En, 20, a Viet Cong triggerman although he has only one eye, was captured with the .32 calibre pistol which killed Van as he rode in his sedan to the constituent assembly building. The other gunman escaped.

Van, 59, was a member of the constituent assembly which is drafting a new South Vietnamese constitution and leader of the political opposition to Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky. He was being groomed to run for president next year.

Police said En, of Cu Chi, about 35 miles northwest of Saigon, denied he fired the bullets which killed Van. Tests showed he had recently fired a gun, however.

Van was killed by two men on a red motorbike which drew alongside his car and fired eight or nine shots, four of which hit the assemblyman.

Assemblyman Shot Dead

Saigon Killing Specific Mission

The gunman was taken to a news conference killed by Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, head of the national police and chief of the military security service. Van died, a police announcement said, although Van was receiving orders a week ago to staunchly anti-Communist and come to Saigon and plan the assassination. He was not told why the Communists wanted Van dead, a police announcement said, although Van was

Edgar Crossley, 103, decorates Mrs. Crossley, 90

Centenarian Restless For His Pioneer Medal

By KEN WARREN

A Victorian who saw Sir John A. Macdonald in person on several occasions, who drilled as a soldier during the 1885 Northwest Rebellion, and who celebrates his 103rd birthday Friday, wants to know where his centennial pioneer medal is.

Edgar Crossley, who was two years old when Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, considers the pioneer medal will be proof of his Canadian heritage.

"Having that medal in my hand will be the highlight of my life," he said Tuesday at Oak Lodge private hospital.

But the medal, to be distributed to pioneers as part of Canada's centennial year plans, hasn't been delivered yet to Mr. Crossley, or anyone else. Distribution is planned next year.

"What's the matter with them? They're awfully slow," the old gentleman complained.

He said he had phoned one official some time ago and received assurance that the medal would be arriving "soon."

"But that was some time ago. There's one for my wife, too. She's 90."

Mr. and Mrs. Crossley, married 68 years, still live together.

Does Mr. Crossley deserve the right to be called a true Canadian pioneer?

Here are just a few bits of his history:

● He was born in Centreville, Ont., in 1863.

● He moved to Brandon, Man., in 1882, and in 1884 drilled as part of the army organized to combat Louis Riel's rebellious Indians and Metis.

"We didn't have rifles for our drills. We only had mop handles to drill with," he said. "Outsiders might think that's funny, but we were in real earnest." They never got to fight the rebels.

● In 1892, 13 years before Saskatchewan joined Confederation, Mr. Crossley moved to that province.

In Oxbow, Sask., he ran his own hardware business, and switched to selling insurance in 1916.

While in Oxbow, Mr. Crossley served on both the first town council and the town's first board. He also helped to build the town's first church.

Mr. Crossley retired at 83—20 years ago—and moved to Victoria.

Saanich Candidates Speak

'We Need Sewers'

By NANCY BROWN

Swan Lake will continue to smell until there are sewers in the entire surrounding area, in the view of Coun. Leslie Passmore.

Replying to a question at an all-candidates meeting in Royal Oak Wednesday, he disputed the contention that the runoff from the sewage treatment plant in the municipal yard was the cause of the smell from the lake.

WINE STORY

"Any water from that plant is chlorinated. The reason for the smell is that the lake is shallow, and it takes the effluent from two wineries, as well as the seepage from septic tanks north of the lake," he said.

All seven candidates for the four vacant seats on council addressed some 40 people, and answered questions, which in the main dealt with council's refusal to allow Eaton's to build a combined wholesale and retail store.

REASON GIVEN

Coun. Allan Newberry said he had voted against the application because the site was suited more to an office complex, and retail stores.

"Eaton's have indicated that they have a new proposal in mind and will be coming back to Saanich council. I shall be very surprised if, at the end of next year, we don't see an Eaton's store in Saanich," he said.

WHY NO VOTE?

Regret was expressed by Douglas Brown that voters did not have a sewer consolidation referendum before them.

MORE THINKING

"The four incumbents are only paying lip service when they say they would like to see a solution, if they don't put such a referendum before us," he said.

INFORMATION NEEDED

Raymond Hayes thought it was wise not to have such a referendum, until the ratepayers had more information on the subject.

Prompt Aid For Injured

Joel Connor, 1649 Wilnot, was treated for a minor leg injury after his motorcycle and a car driven by Joseph Trodden, 736 Kings, collided in the driveway of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

He received instant treatment.

Waterfront Watchers Stricken

Victoria waterfront ship watchers may be unhappy at not seeing the New Zealand freighter Waihem pick up the pilot off Brochle Lodge any more.

But, apparently, they're not as unhappy as Union Steamship Co. employees who stopped work on 50 company ships in New Zealand ports Wednesday because the company has abandoned its runs to the Pacific coast of Canada and the U.S.

The stoppage involved about 1,000 members of the Federated Seamen's Union of New Zealand, which said the stoppage was in support of union members at one port who have been "sitting in" aboard the freighter Waihem since Sunday. The work stoppage lasted four hours.

Waihem and Waitemata, both operated by Union Steamship are well-known in Victoria.

Waihem was built in Vancouver by West Coast Ship Building Ltd. in 1944. Launched as the Fort Mackinac, it later became the Dominion Park before assuming the name Waihem. Waitemata was built by Burrard Dry Dock in North Vancouver in 1948.

The ships won't be seen in B.C. waters again following Union Steamship's decision to cancel the North American runs.

Former Chamber President

Labor Men Back Stephen

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday voted unanimously to support the candidacy of former chamber of commerce president Hugh Stephen for mayor of the city, in its regular bi-monthly meeting.

Political education committee chairman John Schibli said Mr. Stephen gained the nod for his stance in favor of continuance of urban renewal programs and in advocating strong representation to the provincial government for continued municipal transportation operation on its present level.

TWO SIMILAR

Mr. Schibli said candidates Frank Hunter and Clyde Savage appeared to have similar attitudes in most aspects of affecting labor.

The council moved strong support for the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the longshore foremen for their actions in the current waterfront dispute.

NO STRIKE

ILWU representative Stan Ball apologized to the council member for inconvenience and hurt caused by the dispute, but emphasized the ILWU is not on strike. He said the foremen, who are on strike, have attempted to resolve their differences with the employers, but have been ignored.

He said the union has bent over backwards to try to avoid an impasse, but has been unable to move the maritime employers.

WRONG TERM

Mr. Ball also said the term "firing" of the longshore gangs for what the employers claimed was slowdown tactics was misnomer, since longshoremen are "fired" every time they finish loading a ship and hired for next contract.

Organization committee chairman Jack Groves criticized charges of "raiding" being publicized by teamsters' union regional president Ed Lawson. He said six applications from teamster locals for certification have been turned down by the Labor Relations Board, due to existence of a certified local in each instance.

POOR SHOW

The council moved to instruct the Canadian Labor Congress of its disapproval of the teamsters' behavior, "contrary to all principles of trade unionism."

IWA Local 1-118 president Murray Drew said, "If any raiding takes place here, the teamsters will find themselves driving down the highway without loads."

RAID CHARGE

Mr. Lawson recently declared war on the brewery union and other CLC-affiliated unions in the interior of B.C., charging they had tried to raid teamster members.

The council trod lightly on the subject of "bugging," saying it would rule out of order any reference to any person.

CONTEMPT AVOIDED

The council tabled further correspondence on the subject that might be in contempt of the commission, until the findings are published by Commissioner Sargent.

In other business, the council endorsed a 75-per-cent increase in unemployment benefits; approved investigation of possibility of a labor forum as an information medium for the public; voted to ask the CLC to look into violations of the Banking Act by non-Canadian banks; asked the federation to investigate soaring cost of living and high prices.

Optimist Speaker

Canadian-born Larry Mason, district governor for B.C., Washington, Oregon and Idaho, will address the three local Optimist clubs—Victoria, Evening and Oak Bay—at 6:30 p.m. today in the Ingraham Hotel.

Christmas Spirit Dispensed

Just in time for Christmas season, new government liquor store opens Monday in Saanich, where battle between wets and dries has raged for years. New store at Quadra

Curtis, seen with store manager Douglas George and Ron Demontigny, president of company which built store. Shopping centre will follow.—(Jim Ryan)

Lights Out Shortly

A power line was ripped out on Moss Street at 2:50 p.m. Wednesday by a falling branch from a tree, and caused a short break in power service to the Fairfield district.

Lights went back on about 3:19. Several traffic lights in the vicinity were out during the failure, notably at the Oak Bay junction where city police had to take over temporary traffic directing duties.

Anti-Fluoride Tales Hit

Dangers, Opposition Denied in Telegrams

Denials of claims by Oak Bay anti-fluoridationists are being received here from around the world.

Dr. Harold Carter, an Oak Bay councillor and a bone surgeon leading the campaign for fluoridation, produced a handful of telegrams Wednesday in answer to charges made last week by fluoridation fighter H. S. Thullier, 2424 Beach Drive.

'DECEIVING'

Dr. Carter, speaking for himself and not for any organization, said he has no quarrel with citizens who may vote against fluoridation on principle Saturday.

"Purposely deceiving and misleading by unverifiable statements is what I object to," he said.

"It happens every time there's a vote on fluoridation. By the time the allegations have been checked out and the facts are known, enough people have been scared into voting against it."

Some charges made by Mr. Thullier, and rebuttals received by Dr. Carter:

● In his letter published in the Colonist Nov. 30, Mr. Thullier said: "Swedish ministry of health does not recommend fluoridation of water supplies."

A telegram to Dr. Carter from the Swedish national board of health says the country has had fluoridation since 1963, and added: "Widespread positive interest in water fluoridation from municipal authorities."

● Mr. Thullier said Dr. R. H. Harris, director of the "Laboratory of Nutritional Chemistry" at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, declared that one part per million of fluoride interferes with enzyme systems and is a "calculated risk."

Dr. Harris replied: "I am entirely in favor of fluoridation, of public water supplies with one part per million of fluorine. It is a safe, effective and inexpensive method for combating tooth decay."

PARTIAL FILM

Dr. Carter also pointed to the British Dental Journal, which last June commented on an anti-fluoridation movie which was shown in Oak Bay this week, a film using the time-lapse technique purported to show detrimental effects of sodium fluoride on healthy tissue.

"The film 'now being shown in Britain represents only a selected part of the findings," said the Journal.

"The parts of the film which show that fluorides have no adverse effect on human cells have not been included."

Sooke 'Hill' Slides

Vancouver Island has a rash of minor traffic accidents, but there was nothing of the kind reported in other snowfall this winter, although the heaviest fall is still clogging the road from Alberni to Tofino.

In other areas, snow and cold weather are proving little hindrance to traffic, but a boon to youngsters with sleds and toboggans.

In the Sooke to Port Renfrew vicinity, four inches of snow fell in Tuesday night's storm, but roads in the region are now almost clear for traffic.

RCMP at Sooke reported a washout one mile east of Point No Point on the road to Port Renfrew, when "half a hill" came down over the highway.

However, the road was passable by 10:30 p.m. Wednesday. Department of highways crews have salted the highway over the Malahat and the road into Cowichan Lake.

Highway 19 has been salted between Qualicum and Courtenay, and is reported in good condition for motorists to travel, but side roads in all areas between are reported to be slippery.

Light snow is reported still on the ground at Courtenay, and the outlying regions of Port Alberni and Qualicum.

Campbell River and Port Alberni have been plagued with Nanaimo are reported in good condition, with snow only in the higher areas.

More snow and cooler temperatures are forecast for the next few days, so that it will still be advisable to carry chains or use snow tires in travelling Island highways. Roads in the vicinity of

Canadiens on Way Back Win Third Straight, 6-3

BOSTON 2, NEW YORK 4

Montreal Canadiens are coming back. Wednesday night they mounted their fiercest and most successful offense of the season to upset Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3, in National Hockey League action in Montreal.

It was the first time the Canadiens have scored more than three goals in one game this season and it gave them their third straight win.

GETTING CLOSE

The Canadiens are in fourth place, three points behind the New York Rangers with three games in hand.

The win streak began when captain Jean Beliveau hit four goals in a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

His third period goal came on a blazing wrist shot that left Johnny Bower helpless.

In other NHL action, Rod Gilbert scored his ninth and 10th goals of the season in the second period to give New York Rangers a 4-2 victory over Boston Bruins in New York.

The win moved the Rangers into a tie for second place with Chicago.

In Montreal, Eddie Shack was knocked out cold in a head-to-head collision with Canadiens' defenceman Ted Harris in the third period.

Shack had to be helped from the ice and was taken to the hospital.

where he needed 15 stitches to close a laceration on his right eye. He was admitted to hospital for observation.

Harris was left groggy by the crash and the home crowd of 14,722 booed when referee Art Skov assessed him a major penalty for elbowing.

Henri Richard's first period goal was the 250th of his career and he moves into the circle of only 18 players to score at least 250 goals in NHL play.

All three Toronto goals came with Canadiens short-handed as they outlasted the Leafs.

Two-man advantage with Dick Duff and Jim Roberts.

Claude Larose has been the Canadiens' star in their last two wins, picking up five points in the games. Last week he was about to be shipped to the minors but appears to have won a steady job with the Canadiens.

In New York, the Rangers played give-away hockey in the first 10 minutes, handing the Bruins a pair of goals. Ron Schock's goal came on a behind-the-net pass that hit Ranger defenceman Arnie Brown and bounced into the net.

Ted Green's goal was set up by Ranger Don Marshall who accidentally hit the puck right at Green while attempting to clear it out of the New York zone on a penalty-killing trick.

Boston goalie Ed Johnston.

Both teams used their two goalkeepers as Charlie Hodge took over from Gump Worsley in the second period when the Gumpers came up with a bruised right knee.

Johnny Bower took over from Terry Sawchuk in the third period and allowed Beliveau's goal. It was only the third time four goalkeepers played in a single game.

The crowd gave the Canadiens the loudest applause of the season in the third period when they successfully killed off a back after being sidelined with a broken toe, was brilliant in a losing cause. The Rangers peppered 46 shots at him and the Bruins were able to fire only 20 at Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin.

Europe Loves Cassius

LONDON (UPI) Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who defended his heavyweight title twice in England and once in Germany this year, Wednesday was named "sportsman of the year" in the annual balloting conducted in Europe by United Press International.

Clay, slated to make his first 1967 title defense against Ernie Terrell in Houston, Tex., Feb. 6, received 222 votes to outdistance premier miler Jim Ryun of the University of Kansas for the title. Ryun, who set a world mile mark of 3:51.3 on July 17, drew 143 votes.

The U.S. made it a sweep of the first three places as sprinter Tommie Smith of San Jose State collected 132 votes on the basis of world records in the 200-yard run (19.5 seconds), 220 yards around a turn (20.0 seconds).

BRABHAM FOURTH

Auto racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia was named fourth with 121 votes and Eusebio, Portuguese soccer star, was fifth with 117.

Distance runner Ron Clarke of Australia was sixth with 97 votes, followed by England soccer star Bobby Charlton, 49; Polish track ace Irena Kirszenstein, 46; Russian gymnast Mikhail Voronin, 44, and the entire English soccer squad that won the World Cup, 43.

Don Schollander of Yale, received 34 votes for his swimming exploits.

Leafs Find Basement Totems Still Rising

Makes Good

Dave Cutler, a 195-pounder who played football in Victoria with the Victoria Mustangs, was a standout in his second season with the Simon Fraser University team. Cutler, an outside linebacker, made 55 primary tackles, intercepted three passes, one for a touchdown. He also averaged 47.4 yards with 21 kick-off returns and kicked two field goals and six conversions to be second in the individual scoring race with 18 points.

SEATTLE 4, PORTLAND 2

Victoria Maple Leafs were forced into the Western Hockey League basement and Seattle Totems took over third place in a pair of overtime games.

San Diego Gulls, who have been at the bottom of the heap since the start of the season, finally made it out of the cellar when Len Hanson, player of the week last week, scored in the third extra minute to beat Vancouver Canucks, 3-2, in San Diego.

TWO IN A ROW

Totems, who have now won four in a row and six of their last seven games, knocked off

SEATTLE 4, PORTLAND 2

the leading Portland Buckaroos for the second time in a row when Bill Dineen got his second goal of the game after only 33 extra seconds to snap a 3-3 deadlock.

Canucks, who were stopped by fine goalkeeping in the third period when Les Binkley came up with 17 of his 33 stops, also lost Bert Selby for six or more weeks.

Selby, the rookie of the season in the National Hockey League last season, suffered a broken right ankle in a second-period collision with San Diego defenceman Jim Watson.

It climaxed a bad evening for the Canucks, who gave up the Gulls' second goal when a shot from behind the nets deflected in off a Canuck skate.

PALM BEACH GARDENS

Fla. (CP)—Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer had a total of 10 birdies Wednesday and took the first-round lead in the $275,000 Professional Golfers Association national team championships with a sizzling 63.

In their best round ever as teammates—it was one stroke more than the course record—Palmer collected six birdies and Nicklaus four as they toured the front nine of the tough, 6,896-yard east course in 33 and came home in 30.

Bethel Jay and Lionel Herbert, Burt Weaver and Wes Ellis, Tom Shaw and Joe Carr and Howie Johnson and Chris Blocker were bunched in second place at 64.

Locked in third place with 65 were the teams of Bob Goulby and Doug Ford, Dave Hill and Charles Sifford, Doug Sanders and Al Bessiekin, Billy Farrell and Dave Lichard, Larry Wise and Bill Storie, Bobby Mitchell and Wright Garrett and Chick Harbert and Vito Ghezzi.

Sixteen of the 120 two-man teams seeking the $50,000 first money were back in fourth place at 66. They included Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, playing with Ralph Montoya of Little Falls, N.Y., and defending champions Gay Brewer Jr. and Butch Baird, who won last year's inaugural with a 29-under-par 259.

Hockey TV Fans to Get Pause for Refreshments

NEW YORK (CP) —

If you've been watching U.S. and Canadian professional football on television this fall, you may have noticed that the officials extend certain time-outs to accommodate the commercials on the small screen.

Aside from the normal breaks that occur after a scoring play, there are artificial halts in the play to give the sponsors a minute here or there to advertise their products.

NECESSARY EVIL

It's not surprising, considering how much the advertisers contribute to the game through television, especially in the National and American leagues.

Now, with CBS preparing to televise National Hockey League games in the United States, there may be similar arrangements.

Variety, the show business weekly, tells of tests "being made on devices to ensure liaison between referees and camera directors when the NHL games go on TV after the football season ends in January.

The time out for a commercial is no problem when the game is put on tape, as was done by NBC last spring when it showed some Stanley Cup playoff games.

Nor is it a problem for the CBC and CTV in Canada which run brief superimposed commercials on the screen before faceoffs.

WILL GO LIVE

But CBS, which has a rich contract to put the NHL on country-wide TV for the next three years, plans to carry the action live.

Tested recently in New York and Detroit was a device that the referee carries in his shirt pocket. It's about the size of the smallest transistor radio and picks up signals from the video director, letting the official know a time-out is desired at the earliest opportunity.

The normal delay between an offside whistle and faceoff may be 15 to 25 seconds, but when he gets that signal the referee is expected to stall the resumption of play another 30 seconds or so for a commercial.

How will hockey fans, accustomed to having their entertainment fast, furious and relatively uninterrupted, react to the extended time-outs?

Variety is both pessimistic and resigned.

"The added lapse may not be too well with the fans, but then it's not their choice to make. The network has no other way to assure filling its quota of sponsor pitches."

In Canadian football, one way of signalling to the referee is to have someone on the sidelines put on a red cap when the commercial starts and take it off when it ends.

Perhaps if the electronic device works, it will be adapted for the gridiron.

BEHIND THE GLASS

By Jim Tang

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN: Biggest news of the moment in what is probably the biggest curling season yet in these parts concerns the local-level playdowns which are the first step towards the Canadian men's, women's and mixed-rinks championships.

First to get started were the ladies' playdowns, which have been completed at Allan's Curling Club and are well on the way towards completion at the Victoria Curling Club.

At Allan's, Nan Sexton skipped Shirley Ralke, Marg Pratt and Irene Moore into the South Island playoff, scheduled for Esquimalt Municipal Centre on Dec. 17 and 18.

Seven rinks, the others skipped by Muriel Berry, Gail Wren, Carol Williams, Lorraine Smith, Barbara Walker and Edna Bland entered the double knockout competition. Mrs. Bland, who lost in last year's final to Mrs. Williams, was balked again at the last minute when she lost, 7-11, in the final to Mrs. Sexton.

At the Victoria Curling Club, skip Les Jameson, Helen Joachim, Elin Petch and Trudy Hocking will represent the Victoria Ladies' Curling Club, which does its curling in the afternoon.

Mrs. Jameson's rink went unbeaten in a round-robin playoff which involved rinks skipped by Kay MacDonald, Edna Manchester and Dorothy Dekey.

Playoffs in the ladies' evening curling club will be completed this weekend with a rink skipped by Marion Smith currently holding the best chance.

Mrs. Smith reached the final of the double knockout draw by defeating Marg Sturrock and Dorothy Fukuyama and is the only skip left with two chances.

She has a rematch with Mrs. Fukuyama in the semi-finals of the "B" side on Saturday. Georgina Campbell and Flora Martin meet at the same time (7) in the other semi-final. Winners meet at 9 Saturday night and if Mrs. Smith keeps winning, it's all over. If she loses one; there will be a deciding game on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Joining the two VCC winners and Mrs. Sexton in the South Island playoff will be one rink from Duncan and two from Esquimalt. Two of the six will carry on to the Island final, in Duncan on Jan. 7 and the Island winner will play in the district playdowns at the Victoria Curling Club late next month.

In Duncan, Helen Berkley has won two games to hold an edge in a three-rink, double-knockout competition. Joan Hepburn and Vera Evans are the skips of the other two rinks.

THEY'LL BE BUSY: At least six men, and perhaps more, will get their fill of curling when the Victoria club men's and mixed rinks playdowns start. They involve 11 men's and 13 mixed quartets.

Both playdowns are scheduled to start on Jan. 3 and a half dozen names can be found on the lineups of rinks in both affairs. They won't be scheduled simultaneously but there are likely to be back-to-back games several times if the curlers involved in both playdowns should meet with success.

Entered in the men's Comox playdowns are rinks to be skipped by Don Moss, Tom Dickson, Maurice Tettler, Harry Gulka, Steve Hayhurst, Gordie Moore, Tony Guttsell, Keith MacKenzie, Keith Dagg, Al Bonhoeffer and Lyle Garsaway.

With the talent spread around, it promises to be interesting in the first week of January.

THEY'RE IN ORDER: Anyone who hasn't been upstairs at the Victoria Curling Club since the end of last season is in for a pleasant surprise.

The lounge area used to be a room, smoky and too warm or too cold, which was furnished with plywood tables and ugly and none-too-comfortable chairs. But members who automatically apologized or just suffered in silent embarrassment when they brought guests, now have something altogether different.

There is now a tastefully furnished new lounge, complete with a club licence, which has already added considerably to the social end of curling at the club. Congratulations are certainly due members most responsible for doing something in jig time, and so well, that should have been done many years ago.

HOLIDAY BONSPIELS: Holiday bonspiels will be held, at both Esquimalt and the Victoria Curling Clubs.

At Esquimalt, the Saanich Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a Greater Victoria mixed school bonspiel with a 48-rink limit and an entry fee of $6 a rink. There will be four events with prizes for the first four rinks in each and a banquet and dance on Thursday, Dec. 29. Curling starts the day before and concludes on Friday.

Entry may be made at Esquimalt, Victoria or Allan's Curling Clubs.

At the VCC, the annual commercial bonspiel is the holiday affair. It is limited to 48 rinks and is open to all curlers who play in commercial leagues at the VCC and also the mixed and senior leagues.

Rinks may be made up of any combination of male and disaffiliated curlers but the men must curl in the positions they normally play in their leagues.

Entry fee is $24 per rink and entries, accompanied by a minimum deposit of $12, may be made at the Victoria club.

Interest of Former Oarsman Gets Uvic Rowing Club Away

By BRIAN DOHERTY

The University of Victoria rowing club continues its rapid growth. It expects to take delivery sometime this month of a new eight-oared shell from master-craftsman George Pocock of Seattle.

The shell will be a welcome addition to the two four-oared shells already donated to the club by Victoria businessman Harold Elworthy. He is also donating the eight.

The immediate goal of the club is to get a crew into next summer's Pan-Am games at Winnipeg.

That entails winning one of the seven events at the Canadian Henley regatta in St. Catharines at the end of June. Coach Lorne Loomer said the club hopes to send an eight and an oared four if the funds are available.

The club has made giant strides since it was formed September, 1965.

Coach Loomer took over in February, bringing with him experience gained in gold medal wins at the 1956 Melbourne Olympic Games and at the 1958 Cardiff Empire Games.

He began with eight students.

There are now 21 students in the club and the enthusiasm continues to grow.

The first coxed fours went to the Canadian Henley last July, entered in the junior races. They led for 600 of the 2,000 metres and finished third in 7:03.

In their first competitive row, they were just 20 seconds off world standard time.

They also entered the open competition but that was too tough for them this early in their careers.

GOOD SHOW

Their second competition row came at the Seattle University regatta last month. Eight oarsmen and a cox went.

Victoria won the frosh eight and was second in the coxed fours, beaten by a canvas in the last stroke.

With university examinations going on now, the club is temporarily at rest. But next January they will be hard at it again.

The new eight will mean that coach Loomer will probably have two eights each morning, breaking the quiet of Elk Lake.

SIMPLE EXPLANATION
Mr. Elworthy is silent about his donations.

"I was interested in seeing the boys have some equipment," he said, "and get going."

He was a member of James Bay Athletic Association when it was famous for its oarsmen.

"I rowed a bit, in practice, not in competition."

just enough for the two four-oared shells. For two months they did calisthenics before they were allowed near the water.

UNUSUAL PROBLEM
They trained at Elk Lake, which produced a few problems. Nearby residents weren't accustomed to hearing the urgent shouts of "coasters" and coaches and the Saanich police station was flooded with calls of suspected murders and general rowdiness.

But the crews progressed. After a month the first crew covered 2,000 metres in 7:05 minutes.

NOT FAR OFF
The Olympic standard for coxed fours is 6:45 and already the students were pushing themselves toward this target.

Get Trophies
The first junior champions of Glen Meadows Golf Club are Bob Davis and Jill Payne. The juniors received their trophies at the first annual presentation night.

Children with Schizophrenia 'Make Contact' Through LSD

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — LSD appears to help children who have an extreme form of schizophrenia to make better contact with the world, two UCLA researchers report.

After receiving the drug, the children showed more eye-to-face contact with the therapist and smiled and laughed more. They also showed increased responsiveness to adults and reduced the bizarre rocking motions of the body which is a first of this form of mental illness known as autism.

An interview, outlining the admiral's opposition to unification, was reported by The Canadian Press on that date. Admiral Landymore says his remarks to reporters were not connected with Mr. Hellyer's request for his resignation. "When I wouldn't co-operate, I told me I would be compulsorily retired. No one in the department has bothered to make this clear. CUNNINGHAMS AT CUNNINGHAMS WE CARE

Children Hit By Hepatitis

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)
Dr. J. M. Robinson has reported an outbreak of infectious hepatitis has hit school children in the area. He said more than 20 cases of the disease have been reported in the last month but "I wouldn't call it an epidemic."

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Wednesday urged Premier Bennett to give the public an assurance he will pass along the $30-a-month federal old-age pension increase to B.C.'s pensioners.
"There are many pensioners

In our province who are very worried about this," he said in a press conference. "I ask that the province give the extra $30 to every pensioner."
Mr. Strachan said that under the new federal act, it would be up to the provinces to decide whether the $30 increase would simply replace the existing bonus, or be added to the amounts now paid to pensioners.

B.C. now gives old-age pensioners a supplementary allowance ranging up to $31 a month.
The NDP leader said incomes would be boosted to $135 a month for individuals and $270 a month for couples if the new federal increase was added to the schemes.

Mr. Strachan also said he hoped everyone in B.C. would invest in the Bank of B.C., which was recently approved by the House of Commons.
He said he would invest a modest amount in shares of the new bank and predicted that the Social Credit government's influence on the bank's operations would be reduced in proportion to the amount of money invested by the citizens of the province.

"There's no doubt their political connections with directors will allow them to have some say in the operations of the bank," said Mr. Strachan.

"But governments don't last forever and people don't live forever. I expect that eventually it will become a non-political bank."

'Agreeable' Candidates Await Vote

After a campaign which has been marked more by "areas of agreement" than conflict, 14 candidates will battle for six municipal offices at the polls on Saturday.

Numerically it is one of the greatest fields to seek office in the history of the city. The office of mayor became vacant in November when Alfred Toome, whose term had one year to run, died after a heart attack.

In the days following three candidates declared. They were incumbent alderman Hugh Stephen and Clyde Savage and M. Frank Hunter, who retired last year after 38 years as city clerk.

The decision of Ald. Stephen to seek the mayoralty in the middle of his aldermanic term left a one-year vacancy on council which will have to be filled by bye-election. In addition there are four regular vacancies coming up on city council.

Voting will take place at the Victoria Ballroom, 1600 Government Street from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10.

Council Goal Of 11

Victorians Saturday will elect five aldermen from among 11 candidates — also seeking full two-year terms, the others the one-year term vacated by mayoralty candidate Hugh Stephen.

The latter two are Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie and Ian H. Stewart.

Others seeking election are Lloyd Clarkson, Ald. Percy Frampton, Eric H. Garman, Charles E. Kingsfield, Ald. Cecil Parrott, Hugh Ramsay, William A. Scott, W. G. Smith and Charles M. Thompson.

Property Tax Load Too Heavy

A complete reappraisal of provincial-municipal financial arrangements must be brought about as soon as possible in the opinion of Ald. Hugh Stephen.

Somehow the heavy burden must be lifted from property so that the taxation load of ever-expanding social services does not become unbearable.

Intermunicipal relations are a vital concern of candidate Stephen and he feels in this sphere the city should give leadership.

Ald. Stephen said he would not hesitate to pledge the credit of the whole region in order to get a start on meeting the frightening problem of hospital bed shortages.

The sewer problem is clearly a regional matter and as soon as a fair cost-sharing arrangement is worked out, action should be taken.

A horror of slums and a knowledge of their cancerous effect on the community makes the candidate enthusiastic about the city's start on an urban renewal program. The Rose-Blanchard effort should be the first of several.

Ald. Stephen is prepared to accept the word of Premier Bennett that the problem of urban transit will not be unaided on the municipalities and he feels that a policy can be worked out which will ensure a reasonable fare structure for patrons.

Seaport Future His Goal

Victoria can again be the great seaport it once was in the opinion of Mr. Frank Hunter. If pressure is brought on the federal government to build massive breakwaters, one from Holland Point to Brodie Ledge and a matcher off Macaulay Point, this port could accommodate bulk carriers.

The Inner Harbor should be cleaned and made inviolate against encroachment, Mr. Hunter believes.

Pollution, both air and water, is an important issue in this campaign, Mr. Hunter says as is the construction of another east-west artery across the city. This, possibly, should be done by building an inexpensive bridge off Harriet Road.

The steadily mounting tax rate should be considered a source of alarm. It was time, perhaps, to take stock, to assess the city's position and see if the line could not be held.

Mr. Hunter is against the commercialization of Sunday. People are able to play what games they like at present, he added, but he is against the charging of admission to sporting events.

A priceless asset, the Gorge Waterway, should receive the immediate attention of the city, the candidate feels.

Regional Action Stopgap

Regional government serves a useful purpose in the opinion of Ald. Clyde Savage, but it was only brought into existence because municipal representatives in this district did not have the intestinal fortitude to face up to the ultimate necessity — amalgamation. This, he feels, is the complete answer to most of our area problems.

The tourist industry, which brings so much money to Victoria, needs a firm hand.

"Fair play for the tourist," must be the slogan rigidly enforced in the industry if it is to be kept viable.

The construction of a convention centre is a "must," the candidate thinks. It will have the effect of spreading the area's money-making ability across eight months instead of two or three.

Transit problems were the responsibility of the province, Mr. Savage felt, as was capital cost and maintenance of hospitals.

Parking in Victoria is still a problem and Ald. Savage feels that construction of another parking building is a necessity.

Goals Range from Hospitals to Harbor

Mrs. MacKenzie

Mrs. Evelyn MacKenzie has tried for office five times before but is far from discouraged. She is vitally interested in the city's welfare problems and has been active in this and other city questions through her work with the Association of Women Electors.

One of the needs of the city is more low-cost housing for welfare cases and for senior citizens, she feels.

Anything which could be done toward prevention of highway accidents would win her enthusiastic support.

Stewart

A long, hard look should be taken at the Inner Harbor and what can be done to make it more of an attraction for the city and the district, is the opinion of lawyer Ian Hugh Stewart.

The candidate takes a permissive attitude toward Sunday sport and feels that most of the people want it or at least would like the opportunity to express an opinion with the ultimate objective of having the B.C. Municipal Act altered to allow charging of admission to Sunday games.

He is against the proposed Clover Point development which would see breakwaters built to protect boat-launching ramps. There are many places where the money could be spent more effectively, he feels.

Clarkson

The fostering of better relations between city council and the Greater Victoria School District board will be one of the things H. Lloyd Clarkson will work for if elected to office. His experience as a member of the board has convinced him that this is a needed objective.

Establishment of a municipal day care centre to look after children of working mothers is needed, he believes, and a strong policy to prevent further alienation of the city's parkland. Hospitals, sewers and transportation are all recognized as vital problems by the candidate.

Frampton

"Push on with the convention centre," should be one of the axioms for the 1967 council in the opinion of Percy Frampton, incumbent alderman up for re-election.

He believes that the municipal act should be changed to allow tenants to have a vote on municipal money bylaws and that regulations should be eased making it easier for them to qualify for office.

However, he does not believe that anyone other than landowners should be allowed to run for alderman or mayor.

The hospital situation is grave, the alderman points out, but we can't wait for the provincial government to show the way. It will be necessary for municipalities to get moving on their own.

Another swimming pool for children, located perhaps in Central Park, should be a city objective, he feels.

Garman

Community planning, urban and regional, is one of the interests of candidate Eric H. Garman. He believes the acquisition of land for green belts should be stopped up through the Capital Regional Planning Board.

A "hands-off" policy for all city parkland would have his support. Close to the hospital problem, Mr. Garman realizes its gravity. He believes that closer co-operation between municipal and provincial government will bring about a solution to the problem which is one of the most serious facing the district. He favors sewage disposal under "an adequate metropolitan authority."

Kingsfield

Charles E. Kingsfield is for Sunday sport "as it is now" but not for altering the municipal act to allow paid admissions. If this was decided by referendum, however, he would have no objections.

Amalgamation should receive study, he feels, and believes that health services in the area should be taken over by the regional district board — at once.

Parrott

A senior alderman on city council and acting mayor since the sudden death of Mayor Toome, Ald. Cecil Parrott feels that Victoria should lead the way out of the hospital problem. It was a critical problem which had to be solved — and fast — he thought.

He does not feel that tenants should have a vote on money-bylaws and while he feels that implementation of the sewerage survey should be undertaken Victoria should be careful to pay only its share of the cost.

Ramsay

A former alderman, Hugh Ramsay is vitally concerned with the need for an effective mass transportation system. This, he feels, is not a function to be assumed by the city taxpayers. It must be subsidized.

There must be a new and more equitable sharing of health costs in the district. The city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are now paying a disproportionate share.

The construction of two, new economy-type hospitals in Saanichton and Colwood would go a long way toward solving the physical distress caused by the hospital bed shortage. In view of the long preparatory period for any hospital, action should be taken right now.

The "establishment" has been running things too long, in the opinion of William A. Scott. As it stands now, he says, police "wrong-doings" are often whitewashed. One way to avoid this in future would be to elect two of the three members of the police commission.

Mr. Scott claims that the motoring public in Victoria is "hounded" with more parking meter violation fines and traffic penalties than any other city in Canada.

He will, if elected, try to find out why.

Another objective would be to convert the city into a "free port" with all attendant advantages. This would revitalize the city and make it a port of call for liners and a mecca for tourist bargain hunters.

Hand-manufactured products aimed at the Christmas market will be on sale within a few days, a spokesman for the Victoria Junior Achievement program said Wednesday.

Victoria centre manager Len Nielsen said the four student companies have selected their names and the products they will manufacture — most of them suitable for gifts, and others for decoration.

Teico, sponsored by B.C. Telephone, is making Christmas corsages and King Alfred cakes, stress on Achievers are selling which burn in a fireplace with a colored flame.

Jateco, sponsored by the T. Eaton Co., has selected wall plaques; Centennial, sponsored by the Hudson Bay Co., wax candles, and Rows and Rose, sponsored by Woodwards, bookends and rose trellises.

Junior Achievement salesmen and salesgirls will be appearing at Victoria doors in the next two weeks selling these products.

Mr. Nielsen said he wishes to stress on Achievers are selling magazines or subscriptions to magazines, contrary to what the young people selected their own officers and boards of directors, decided on products to manufacture and are starting into production.

The money to launch the companies was raised entirely by sales of common stock to the general public.

The only assistance given to the young people is initial lectures on business administration, sales techniques, etc., given by junior executives of the sponsors.

Smith

Many years of experience in fighting against pollution and noise would be enlisted in the city's service if he was elected, says W. G. Smith.

He would work for an effective anti-noise bylaw and do something to see that the air breathed by Victoria children was the purest to be found anywhere.

He would press for the longest possible sewerage outfalls that city financing could stand.

Thompson

Charles M. Thompson's objectives, if elected, would include the construction of a sewage disposal plant for the district.

He believes that labor should have a seat on city council because labor people are interested in the development of the municipality as a whole.

Low-rental housing projects are needed, he says and more recreation facilities for young people.

Son of Pioneers Dies in Hospital

The principal clerk in the provincial finance department, Charles Gilbert McIlmoy, 57, died Tuesday night in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was born in Victoria, the son of Scottish pioneers, the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIlmoy. He was prominent in local athletics and worked for the civil service since 1940.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, at their home at 4180 North Road; two daughters, Mrs.

L. K. Cleghorn of Duncan, and Maureen, at home; one son, Norman, at home; one granddaughter; and four sisters, Mrs. T. Parkinson, Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. W. Reese, all of Victoria, and Mrs. A. Bundoock of Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. Chapel at 11:30 a.m. Friday, with Rev. John Vickers of St. Columba's Church, Strawberry Vale, officiating. Cremation will follow.

Sooke Voters To Decide Building Plan

Sooke school district electors have two issues at stake in Saturday's voting.

They will be electing three trustees from eight candidates for the school board, and voting on a $1,165,200 school expansion referendum.

Referendum voting will cover the whole area, but in voting for trustees there are two districts.

COT FLEDGE
The Milne's Landing district has three candidates for one seat. George Cotterill, Church Road, would cut costs in school buildings, in lunch rooms, and by use of less expensive seats.

Claude A. MacDonald, East Sooke Road, is a retired accountant who feels his business experience would benefit the board.

Mrs. Grace Robinson of Otter Point, a former teacher, wants the district to keep moving ahead.

Treachery Tales Haiti Plot Sequel

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Herald says Haiti's consul in Miami and a controversial Cuban exile have accused each other of treachery in a plotted invasion of Haiti that never came off.

The newspaper quotes Haitian Consul Eugene Maximilien as saying Fulencio Batista, a former Cuban senator and enemy of the exiled former Cuban president, Fulencio Batista, organized an invasion and then told Maximilien here that he would call it off for $200,000.

DUALITY REFUSED
It quotes Maximilien as saying he told Haitian President Francois Duvalier about it and Duvalier refused to pay.

Maximilien is quoted as saying in New York that he and Maximilien had never met, that he (Maximilien) had not left New York state to which he is restricted by the U.S. immigration service and that he had made no offer.

Maximilien also is quoted as saying Maximilien sent word to him that he would support the invasion plot if he were assured a diplomatic post in Europe when the invasion succeeded.

SEVERAL QUIZZED

The Herald says several Miami Cuban exiles told it they have been quizzed by U.S. customs and immigration officers about the alleged invasion scheme, reported to have involved 300 Cubans at one time.

The supervising customs agent declined to answer questions on the Haitian affair, saying "it is not our policy to comment when we have an investigation or the possibility of one."

EDMONTON (CP) — An army helicopter from the defence department base at Namao, near Edmonton, joined a search Wednesday for a CF-104 Starfighter aircraft missing on a training flight.

The aircraft, flown by Lt. R. W. Robbins, 27, of Dutton, Ont., disappeared Tuesday near Cold Lake, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton. Temperature was 14 below zero Tuesday.

Yugoslavs Go Home

TORONTO (CP) — Two Yugoslav ship jumpers, ordered out of the country by Immigration Minister Marchand, left Toronto Wednesday night for Belgrade.

Anie Ivanec and Slavko Smoljan, both 23, were scheduled to leave Canada at 5:20 p.m. but fog at Toronto delayed their flight.

Mr. Marchand ordered them out of Canada in May, but both men appealed. Earlier Wednesday, they learned their appeals had been turned down by Prime Minister Pearson and Mr. Marchand.

Both men have been working in a suburban factory and both say they fear persecution if they are forced to return to Yugoslavia.

Two Automakers Cut Production

DETROIT (AP) — Two of the big three U.S. automakers announced production cuts that would put the December industry-wide production figure at least 70,000 vehicles below that of December, 1965.

General Motors, the biggest auto maker, said its decline would be about 83,000 vehicles from December, 1965.

Chrysler Corp. announced it planned to produce 140,000 cars this month as opposed to 146,000 in December, 1965.

Conservative backbenchers Lewis Brand of Saskatoon put a question on the matter on the Commons order paper May 16.

When it wasn't answered, he put another one on Sept. 8. It hasn't been answered either.

He told the Commons Wednesday he felt it was "only right" the government answer the question because newspaper reports have stated the members might lose their seats.

Mr. Pearson replied he didn't want to answer until he had received all the information.

Conservative leader Pearson asked the same question if it was correct that the CBC received an answer from the law officers of the crown in 1964 about the effect of an MP receiving payment.

Mr. Pearson replied he didn't want to answer until he had received all the information.

Town Tied By Vote For Batman

GAINESVILLE, Ga. — Batman, television's caped crusader, held the balance of power in a city commission race, all because someone put his name on a write-in ballot.

Amazed officials counted the votes in an election for city commissioner three times and each time got the same results. Candidates Howard James and Joseph Stargel each received 674 votes and there was one write-in vote for Batman. The votes were made official. City Attorney William Guner said he will have to do some extensive research in law books to find an answer to the problem.

HALIFAX — Laurie Headlee, whose life could depend upon three small bottles of one of the world's rarest blood types, is reported "holding his own" in hospital as doctors learned of a possible new source of blood. His own family has donated all that's possible, but Mrs. Jean Gust, Edmonton, says she can provide the type of blood needed.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Two men named Joe Rodriguez were summoned for jury duty. One of them discovered, after testimony began, that his namesake was sitting in the jury box. Joe Rodriguez No. 1 complained to the judge about the Joe Rodriguez No. 2 and a mistrial was declared. Both Joes went home.

GLOUCESTER, England — Clive Adams told a judge that since an auto accident in 1962 he has been unable to tell the difference between beer and water. "That is a very serious matter," said the judge — and awarded Adams a $12,437 in damages.

COLVILLE, Wash. — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, recuperating after an 11-day ordeal in the snowy northeastern Washington wilderness, will be released from Mount Carmel Hospital today.

HONG KONG — J. C. Lawrie, assistant chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, has left here after a wheat-selling visit to Peking. He declined comment on the negotiations with the Communist Chinese.

Joseph Novak, 28, charged in the axe-slitting of his two sons in Vancouver has been placed in Riverview Mental Hospital for an indefinite term by a provincial cabinet order.

ROME — Paul Getty Jr., whose father has been called the richest man in the world, will wed blonde, Dutch-born actress Tallitha Pol here in a simple civil ceremony.

U.S. Underestimated Red Missile Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara says U.S. intelligence experts underestimated the number of ocean-spanning missiles the Soviet Union will have in place by mid-1968.

But he says U.S. estimates of the number of long-range missiles now deployed by the Russians are "remarkably accurate." He added that the error in assessing Moscow's missile-production plans has "no basic impact" on U.S. requirements.

RUSSIAN DEFENCE

McNamara's disclosures, made Tuesday as he talked with reporters at President Johnson's Texas office, followed his announcement last month that the Russians are erecting an anti-missile defence around major cities.

While admitting U.S. intelligence estimates on Soviet missile deployment fell on the short side, McNamara took unusual pains to stress the United States can deal a crushing nuclear blow to any attacking enemy.

McNamara made these points:

- The U.S. still maintains a 3- to 4-to-1 advantage over the Soviet Union in intercontinental ballistic missiles.
- Even if new intelligence estimates for mid-1968 Soviet nuclear strength are correct, the U.S. will hold a "substantial quantitative and qualitative lead" without taking any actions beyond those already planned and finished.

Hedging against a possible intelligence error, the U.S. accelerated development of the submarine-launched Poseidon missile, pushed work on new penetration aids to ensure that missiles get through any enemy defence, and decided to deploy the improved, land-based Minuteman III ICBM.

ALMOST EXACT

"Evidence indicates that the Soviet intercontinental ballistic missile strength today is almost exactly—and I mean within a few missiles, five to 10 missiles—of what our intelligence people predicted it would be a year ago," he said.

Pentagon figures give the U.S. a wide bulge over the Soviet Union in ICBMs—about 1,600 for the U.S. to about 450 for the Russians.

Starting from 1970, China should be able to deliver the deterrent within a range of 1,500 miles, threatening its Asian neighbors, including far eastern areas of Russia, India and Japan, a report said.

Where There's a Will . . .

LONGFAULT, France (Reuters) — An 83-year-old man was killed by a car in this Burgundy village as he crossed the road to deposit his will at local government offices. A council official said the will undoubtedly would be accepted as valid.

Victoria Needs Deep-Sea Ships

Victoria should take a good look at the dollar value of deep-sea shipping instead of permitting it to be sidetracked to Cowichan Bay, a Chamber of Commerce committee was told Tuesday.

Harbor and transportation steering committee member Ron Newell said heavy dock traffic had been reduced as the result of criticism, producing a detrimental effect on the city's economy.

"It is going to be a sorry day for Victoria when Cowichan Bay will take all this traffic," he said. Other cities are clamoring for traffic, he said, while Victoria's tourist-oriented elements do their best to discourage it.

Committee chairman George Farmer said a bridge spanning the Inner Harbor would divert the heavy lumber trucks from Government or Douglas on their way to Ogden Point. He was named to head the committee in September, when chamber members felt the need for revitalization of transportation planning.

A bridge between James Bay and Victoria West, such as Mr. Farmer mentioned, is part of the Greater Victoria planning, evolved by the Capital Region Planning Board and endorsed by the chamber last year.

Mr. Farmer said a bridge would enable other traffic to enter or leave the general business periphery at a greater speed and with more convenience.

Tom Denny endorsed the bridge proposal, saying Victoria needs the bridge as soon as possible. He said the bridge should be built before any outlay on new docking facilities is considered.

A proponent of docking facilities, Victoria lawyer Foster

Mr. Isherwood, said dock facilities were more important in the long run and should be completed immediately.

He said a breakwater on the Post Proves Shocker

PAIGNTON, England (UPI) — All of a sudden the favorite lamp post started to hit back at Paignton's dogs. The pet yelped, howled and danced around after stepping at the lamp post in the customary way.

To the dog owners it was all a mystery until the electricity board found a fault — a short circuit was giving the dogs an electric shock when they least expected it.

Underworld Makes Plans For Big Expo Operation

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Michel, vanished about two weeks ago and is believed to have been the cause of wrecking the Lette Appalachian meeting of Mafia in Montreal.

His remarks followed an angry debate in the legislative assembly, provoked by his asking the present justice minister, Jean Jacques Bertrand, what action he intended to take in the matter.

Wagner pointed to a Sunday evening interview with an FBI undercover agent on a Montreal television station.

"He mentioned names, he gave details on certain networks being set up — prostitution network, narcotics ring — and he spoke of the ease with which stolen bonds can be circulated in the milieu."

Cashier Missing

MONTREAL (UPI) — A man alleged to be "cashier, collector and man Friday" for one of the Montreal underworld kingpins, is reported to have skipped town with more than $250,000.

LUSKVILLE, Que. (CP) — Provincial police have detained a 45-year-old civil servant on a coroner's warrant as a material witness following a tavern shooting Tuesday night in which one man was killed and another wounded.

In custody is George Hayes, a federal agriculture department chemist and father of seven children.

Wagner Named

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal businessman who alleges he was tortured by police to make him testify about a number of arson cases filed a $250,000 damage action in Quebec Superior Court Wednesday, naming the Quebec justice department and Claude Wagner, former justice minister, among a large number of defendants.

Debutantes Presented at USI Ball

Once again a cherished tradition of Victoria's past was re-enacted in all its splendour last evening at the Empress Hotel.

The evening 12 young girls had been looking forward to for so long had become a reality and how the sparkle and excitement of the annual debutante ball, held under the sponsorship of the United Services Institution of Vancouver Island, are just happy memories.

Gowned in traditional white the debutantes were escorted up the red carpet to be presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes. The latter wore a gown of pale green on white floral brocade.

Following the presentation escorts claimed their debutantes and took to the floor to dance the traditional debutante waltz.

Tall, dark haired Cathrine Ash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Ash of Reno, Nevada, formerly of Victoria, chose a gown of white satin with chiffon overlay. The bodice was sequined and the hemline of the full skirt was banded in satin and matched the satin waistline bow. With it she wore pearl earrings. Her escort was Mr. Donald Mosedale.

Pretty Cath Bell, daughter of Mrs. V. E. Bell, was escorted by Officer Cadet Ken Binkley. Her debutante gown was of chiffon styled on simple lines with organza flowers appliqued on the bodice. Gold earrings were her only jewelry.

Jacqueline Burling, daughter of Major and Mrs. H. G. Burling, wore a dress of white satin and redingote of white lace styled with open neckline and bow at the back waistline. Her diamond cross pendant was a gift from her godfather on the day she was born. Waiting for her after making her curtsy to His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes was her escort, Officer Cadet Ken Benson.

Dianna Crabtree, daughter of Major and Mrs. K. S. Crabtree, chose a classic gown of off-white brocade interwoven with gold thread, plain in front and with double box pleats flaring out at the back from small, flat bows. A strand of pearls and pearl earrings completed her costume.

Brunette and blond sisters, Lynn and Maureen Fanthorpe, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. L. Fanthorpe, were escorted by Officer Cadet Geoff Haswell and Mr. Michael Fall of Cobble Hill. Lynn wore a classic sheath of delustred white velvet designed with a slightly fitted waistline and side slits in the skirt. Jewelry was a pearl drop pendant and earrings.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor with Mrs. McGowan and Mrs. Pearkes with Group Capt. E. A. McGowan, president of the United Services Institution, debutantes and escorts and guests in the lead dance following the presentation in the Crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel last evening.

Maureen was wearing a gown of white peau de soie, the bodice plain with round neckline and the skirt featuring overlapping inverted pleats. Her necklace of pearls and French bracelets was loaned by her grandmother, Mrs. H. Fanthorpe.

Petite Kirsty Gladwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gladwell, was a picture in her gown of heavy white slipper satin styled with sleeveless bodice and small bustle bow of silvered velvet. A diamond band was in her hair and she also had a strand of pearls. Her escort was Officer Cadet David Redmond.

Smiling Gillian Gregory, daughter of Chief Constable and Mrs. J. F. Gregory, was lovely in her gown of embossed white wool and nylon, A line, with square neckline and pleated detail at back. Her silver bracelet was a gift from her godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Murray of Kitimat, and she also had a strand of pearls. Mr. Mark Clark was her escort.

Pretty little Heather Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Henderson, was escorted to the ball by Officer Cadet Terry Rogers. The taffeta bodice of her gown was overlaid with re-embroidered Venetian lace and had a tiny band of peau de soie ending in a bow at the front of the crescent waist. The softly flowing skirt of chiffon was finely pleated.

Blond Cecily Mosedale, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. W. J. Mosedale, wore a gown of white crepe in Grecian style with crystal brooch holding the drape over one shoulder. Her earrings were also of crystal and she had a white velvet band in her hair. Her escort was Officer Cadet Robert Ogilvie.

A classic A-line gown of white and silver brocade styled with Empire waistline was the choice of Miss Katherine Smith. A floating back panel ending in a slight train was re-embroidered with shell pink and silver flowers. Miss Smith, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Norman J. W. Smith, was escorted by Mr. Martin Middleton.

Sparkling as she walked the red carpet was Miss Barbara Wade, wearing a dainty gown of Swiss organza embroidered with silver roses and pearls in her hair. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wade she was escorted by Mr. Allan McDiarmid.

Spade Club

Students Entertain Children

Holding afternoon concerts several times a year for the children at Queen Alexandra Solarium is only one of several such projects carried out by the 50 members of the Mount Douglas Spade Club.

All students at Mount Douglas Secondary School, the members, give many hours of their free time helping to look after and entertain the children at the Handicapped Children's Clinic, as well as providing entertainment and "putting on square dances for the young people at the Elford Street Centre for the Retarded."

Miss Lorraine Andrews is president of the Mount Douglas Spade Club which is sponsored by the Sanich Kiwanis Club.

Tuesday afternoon's concert at the Solarium featured the children's favorite folk song entertainers and an acrobatic team, all students at Mount Douglas. They included, singer Ron Webb, accompanied by Harry Riddick on the guitar, both honorary members of the Spade Club; folk singers Maria Pattison, Kent Fiddy and Tony Robertson and acrobats Margaret Worley, club member, and Judy Dillabaugh.

On Saturday, Dec. 17, members of both the Oak Bay and Mt. Douglas Spade Clubs will hold a Christmas party for the children at Handicapped Children's Clinic.

Ann

Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am so mortified, I could die. I'm a senior in high school and I am also president of our "Tri Hi Y" Club. Last night the meeting was at my home.

My father came home about 8:30 — roaring drunk. He sat himself down in the middle of our meeting and took over. When I tried to get him to leave the room he went on a crying jag, said nobody wanted him around any more and that the whole world was against him. Then he became abusive to my friends, called them names and told them to get out of the house. Everyone left, without even eating the refreshments I had worked so hard to prepare. Tomorrow his humiliating experience will be the talk of the school.

My father has been a heavy drinker for as long as I can remember, but this is the first time he has done anything like this. Please tell me how I can stop hating him. And tell me how I can face the kids at school. JANET

Dear Janet: You must stop hating him, not for his sake, but for your sake. Sometimes an alcoholic must hit bottom before he is ready to admit he has a problem and seek the help he needs. Maybe this incident will be the turning point in your father's life. Let's hope so.

In the meantime, go back to school and hold up your head. You are not responsible for your father's behavior.

Look into Alateen, a group of teenagers who must live with alcoholic parents. Alateen is a branch of Alcoholics Anonymous and you will find it listed in the phone book under A.A. Good luck to you, honey, and chin up.

Dear Ann Landers: I have an answer for "Getting Notions" — the woman whose husband falls asleep in front of the TV and shows no sign of life after 8:00 p.m. She confessed that almost every man she sees is beginning to look good to her.

I had the problem many years ago, and this is how it was resolved. I had seven children in 12 years. I did all my own house work, took a part-time job, not by choice but because I had to help pay the bills. My husband found something wrong with every place he worked. Either the people were beneath him socially, or the work was too hard, or the hours were too long, or the job was too far from the house.

He drifted from one thing to another and finally he went into

Javanese Girls Parting With Lustrous Tresses

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuter) — Big business has got at the beautiful hair which Javanese girls wear with pride.

With wig-making-booming, manufacturers need all the human hair they can get, and the lustrous tresses of Javanese girls — heavy, thick and easily worked — are ideal.

In Hong Kong alone, more than 50 factories work flat-out creating wigs, many of them for the North American fashion market.

They need at least 30 tons of hair a month and Indonesia is their major supplier. The crowded island of Java provides most.

Everywhere the women and girls, butterfly bright in gaily printed sarongs, wear their hair gathered into black, gleaming coils, or plaited into long, thick pigtales reaching to the waist.

Javanese women even have a special style for wearing their hair when in traditional costume.

It seems surprising that they can be persuaded to part with it at all. But they are parting with it — and incidentally, providing many Chinese businessmen with fortunes.

The Chinese have collectors going round the villages of east Java. Sometimes women will only part with a little hair at a time. Young girls cut off their plaits for some candy for a few rupiahs (pennies).

A few months ago, prices soared to something like $14 for one pound of hair. Now the prices have settled to about $11 a pound. This represents great wealth to people whose monthly income may be as low as $2.

Fluoridation Fight Decided Saturday

Hubert Cashman

An eligible 9,016 voters will be given a chance Saturday to say whether or not fluoridation is for Oak Bay.

Last year's referendum vote fell only 17 votes short of the needed 50-per-cent majority.

Voters will also elect three councillors from among six candidates.

Fred Hawes

Alex Hendry

Jack Rhodes

J. D. Watts

Lance Whittaker

Fred Hawes, 668 Falkland, seeking his sixth term as councillor, wants an immediate study by senior governments of local government finance.

TAX PLAN

He believes the rapidly increasing costs in education, social services and hospital capital construction will have to be substantially reduced as a direct charge against the property owner. He will work for a better tax-sharing agreement and for development of recreational facilities in a planned program. Mr. Hawes is retired.

NO COMMITMENT

Mr. Hawes would not commit himself on the fluoridation issue. "I'm not for it or against it," he said. "I'm leaving that to the people to decide."

HOSPITAL USE

J. D. Watts, 2285 Woodlawn, who has 6 1/2 years on council and is president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities, wants an independent study of all aspects of hospital use.

He wants to see through to completion of the new family court building.

Mr. Watts feels high-rise apartments in Oak Bay are all right, but not along the waterfront or on high locations. Mr. Watts is a civil engineer with the provincial government.

RIG BUSINESS

Hubert Cashman, 454 Newport, a chartered accountant, believes municipal spending is big business and with more experienced businessmen on council ratepayers would be getting better value for their tax dollar.

He intends to fight for a larger share of senior government tax money toward education and hospitals.

LIBERTY FIRST

Mr. Cashman says he is "a fervent believer in liberty in all its phases," and he believes that fluoridation of municipal water is "an invasion of personal liberty."

Lance Whittaker, 2986 Ashdown, a newspaper publisher, wants to see continuance of good municipal government in Oak Bay. "We have been enjoying first-class municipal government which has made Oak Bay a good place to live. Let's keep it this way," Mr. Whittaker is in favor of fluoridation.

LOT OF MONEY

Jack Rhodes, 2700 Burdick, doesn't believe in calling in an outside firm at a cost of $100,000 to make a survey of the hospital situation here. "That is a lot of money. There are organizations here capable of making the survey."

He has had experience as a member of Prince George's school board, board of health and planning commission.

He plans to vote against fluoridation. Alex Hendry, 3253 Henderson, a plywood company executive and a former councillor, would like to see a temporary settlement on hospital insurance policy to give space to negotiate a better agreement with the provincial government. He feels features of the regional board that give promise, such as garbage disposal, should be pursued. He wants a single fire alarm number for the whole of Greater Victoria.

Mr. Hendry says that, as a candidate for council, he has no comment on the fluoridation issue.

'Thou Shalt Have Tea Break'

BRACKNELL, England (UPI)—For David Byers, as for many other Britons, that afternoon cup of tea isn't just a break—it's a moral obligation.

This, a judge ruled Tuesday, may explain why the 34-year-old construction worker drove his bulldozer four miles to a cafe just for a cup of tea.

But a local policeman, noticing the unusual vehicle parked there, asked to see Byers' driving insurance card—and booked him because his policy did not cover "social pleasures and domestic use."

Nonsense, argued the youth's attorney, tea isn't "social pleasure" only. "Implicit in every workman's contract of employment are the words: 'Thou shalt have a tea break.'"

Quite right, said the judge, and dismissed the charge. Except, of course for a fine of $5 for parking in a pedestrian crossing.

Apathy Fears Out of Order

News reports of fears about voter apathy in North Saanich are out of order, Reeve J. B. Cumming said Wednesday night.

Reeve Cumming said the reports quoted him as saying he was disappointed no public meeting had been called for candidates. He said he made the remark Monday, and on Tuesday learned a public meeting had been planned.

But, he said, since three of the four candidates contesting two vacant seats on municipal council could not attend the proposed Chamber of Commerce open meeting, which was to have been held tonight, the meeting was cancelled.

FOUR FOR TWO

Two incumbent councillors and two newcomers are contesting the two vacant seats:

Frank Clifford Adams, 65, of 9690 West Saanich Road, retired B.C. Telephone technician, has lived in North Saanich for the past 30 years.

Mr. Adams, a chairman of the project centennial committee and trustee of Sidney-North Saanich fire department, advocates controlled development, sound administration and minimum taxes.

CAREFUL PLANNING

George Aylard, 32, of 1435 Wains Road, is seeking reelection to council.

Mr. Aylard advocates tight control on spending, and careful planning. He also backs road construction and planning of the new municipal hall.

Joseph Saville, 62, of 1855 John Road, is president of both the Saanich Plowing Association and the Vancouver Island Ayrshire Breeders Association, and a past president of the B.C. association.

END PROBLEMS

He advocates flexible bylaws for control of land development and an end to the peninsula's water problems.

J. Harold Wilson, 65, of 909

Towner Park, a retail merchant, is seeking re-election. Mr. Wilson stresses he wishes to carry on the work of organizing the new municipality. He advocates orderly planning and development, and is satisfied with council's progress during its first year in existence.

Quiet Reigns as Six Seek Three Seats

Police-Fire Bill Main Esquimalt Issue

All is quiet in the Esquimalt area, with voters preparing to elect three councillors from among six candidates.

The three incumbents are running again, and the main point at issue seems to be the provision of a separate fire department.

The incumbents are lined up solidly to keep the present commission and the press, to bring residents into closer contact with council.

"Many misunderstandings, all too evident of late, could have been avoided if council had kept the ratepayers fully informed," he said.

Clean light industry should be encouraged in the area to offset increasing taxes.

Low rent housing and a recreation centre are needed for senior citizens, and another football and soccer field for recreation.

Ernest R. Brown, 649 Admirals, is a newcomer to municipal elections.

"We need a better fire department now," he feels. "I joined police and fire force, saying costs are too high for separate departments.

Property owners in the View Royal peninsula will also go to the polls to vote for the second time on possible amalgamation with Esquimalt.

Last year an 86-per-cent turnout rejected the proposal by a margin of 14 votes.

Some 218 property-owners are eligible to vote on the issue. James W. Bell, 542 Lampson, advocates closer contact be-don't see why we can't add a volunteer department to our trained nucleus without too high a cost increase."

He says the naval department does not have the local knowledge required of firemen in emergencies.

He believes a watchful eye should be kept on bylaws. "Some poor ones have been slipping by council," he says.

James Bryant, 1140 Esquimalt Road, has been 15 years on council, and is running on his record.

His special interest is inter-municipal and regional affairs.

Within the past month, businessmen have been protesting a "surprise" increase in license fees and fishermen have complained of a "surprise" charge on wharfage.

Both issues have been responsible for eruptions at meetings.

Two incumbent commissioners and two newcomers are battling for two vacant seats on the commission.

TOWN STATUS

Commissioners elected will automatically become aldermen when Sidney is granted town status Jan. 1.

Candidates: L. R. Christian, 1780 Mills Road, an incumbent who advocates building a hospital for the north peninsula in Sidney, and setting understandings between businessmen and the commission.

NO SPEAKING

W. W. (Wilkie) Gardner, incumbent, businessman, 2525 Shoreacres, advocates a better relationship between the taxpayer and the commission.

"People coming to council meetings in the past haven't been able to speak and express their views," he said.

He also advocates more research and study be put into council matters.

BETTER ACT

Lawrence James, 2281 Beacon, an auditor, wants a more informed electorate and a rewriting of the Municipal Act in clearer terms.

Mr. James was an original director of the Sidney Ratepayers' Association.

Mrs. Norma Sealey, housewife, 1936 Lochside, advocates more works, and his prime interest lies in this area.

Another interest is in the field of recreation. He would like to see more park facilities for sport in the municipality before consideration is given to joining regional acquisition of parkland.

Walter Lock, 1192 Highrock, has been a councillor for 4 1/2 years. Chairman of parks and playground committees, he favors extensions to existing parks, and acquisition of local land before joining the regional board's program to acquire parkland in other areas.

Coun. Lock wants to see small sewage treatment plants eliminated, and believes the discharge of industrial wastes into sanitary sewers should be investigated.

L. Fred Tooby, 935 Lampson, feels there is room for some new blood on council.

"Provision of more prime ice time at the arena is important. Some of our youngsters practise at 6 a.m. In giving them more ice time we would save money, because if they are on the streets we need more police, and more money for maintenance and repairs."

He believes provision of a separate fire department is too expensive for Esquimalt.

Sidney Surprises Bring Fireworks

Municipal elections are generating considerable public interest at Sidney because of recent criticisms levelled at the village commission.

Two-Gun Says Guards Behave

LONDON (CP) — Morris (Two-Gun) Cohen is back from another trip to his beloved China and he brings word that the Communist Red Guards now are an orderly lot.

"The spirit is wonderful," said the former gambler who grew to manhood in the Canadian West and became a general in China after the First World War.

"When it first started there was a little over-enthusiasm," he said, with reference to the Red Guards. "But now they are well disciplined."

In Peking last month, Cohen was a special guest at the centenary celebration of the birth of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic.

"I've known them all," said Two-Gun, once a bodyguard for Sun, and a mediator in fruitless efforts 11 years ago to bring Mao together with President Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China.

Ever since Cohen swagged along Chinese streets with two pistols strapped to his waist he has been known as Two-Gun and he has never been known to object to the handle.

Cohen was sent from London to Canada at the age of 16, his Polish parents giving him their blessing and about $20.

In Edmonton, he met the revolutionary Dr. Sun, adopted him, adopted China, and the Chinese adopted him. He thinks Mao's government "is the finest and best" in China's history.

He has apparently given up any idea of a truce between Mao and Chiang's Formosa regime but has made himself available to mediate the war in Viet Nam.

The ease with which he revisits Mao's China from time to time puts him in some kind of special category. His ability to speak various Chinese dialects has helped.

At 79 he gets around spryly, usually with smoke curling out of the barrel end of a big cigar.

"Actually I am 30 in China," says Two-Gun. "They count your age from the time of conception."

About some things he is garrulous. About any possible role as negotiator or mediator, he is tight-lipped.

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand's defence minister, Dean Byrne, announced Wednesday he is taking legal action over alleged misquoting of his remarks at an Auckland election meeting this month.

In a press statement he said he had suffered "considerable injury" in many parts of the world because of publication of what he described as a false report of his remarks Nov. 23.

He said two writs were issued talking about military targets when he said he would like to give North Viet Nam a basketful of bombs.

A writ has been issued in the Supreme Court here against the publishers of the New Zealand position Labor party.

On Nov. 29 Byrne said he had been misquoted and that he was

Lively Election Awaits Central Saanich Vote

A lively election is in the offing in Central Saanich. Featured are a two-way race for the reeveship and contests for three other vacant council seats by six candidates.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee, 67, seeking re-election for a fourth (and last, he says) term, is opposed by Ray Lamont, a former councillor. The two battled for the reeveship once before, in 1960, with Reeve Lee coming out on top.

HEALTH BOARD

He is chairman of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health and actively engaged in intermunicipal matters such as water, library and sewage.

He advocates early submission of a comprehensive bylaw to regulate the "orderly growth of the municipality."

He favors subdivision bylaw to force payment from subdividers, rigid control of taxes and an amended cost-sharing agreement, and an early plebiscite for the Brentwood Bay area sewage system.

Ray Lamont served on council for 14 years, on almost all council committees.

ONE-MAN SHOW

He says the reeve leads a one-man show and that not all correspondence is being read in council.

Council candidates: Archibald M. Galbraith, 45, 6845 West Saanich Road, marine engineer and supervisor, feels that he can assist Central Saanich municipal council in matters such as waterworks, the proposed Brentwood sewer system and other public works projects since his duties include decision-making and direction in the fields of engineering.

Charles Harris, 51, 1620 Keating Cross Road, plumbing and heating contractor, missed a council seat in 1957 by one vote.

A past president of the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce, he favors formation of a joint water board for the rural peninsula.

He is opposed to installation of Brentwood's proposed sewage system outlet in Saanichon Bay.

A. K. Hemstreet, 65, a blacksmith, is standing on his past record during the six years he has been on council.

THIRD ATTEMPT

Mr. Hemstreet, who supports park development, is active in the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society fair and other agricultural activities.

Peter Lazars, 1797 Cultra

Avenue, milk farmer, has been secretary of the Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce and president of B.C. Milk Producers' Association, Vancouver Island division. This will be his third attempt to gain a seat on council.

Tom G. Michell, farmer, who is chairman of public works committee, seeks a fourth term in office.

Mr. Michell advocates further development of Centennial Park on Wallace Drive.

Margaret Salt, who has been on council two years, represents council on health, family and children's court and detention home matters, and is chairman of the centennial committee.

Ship's Silence Routine

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The chief dispatcher for Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s Great Lakes steam ship division testified Wednesday that lack of radio contact with the ill-fated freighter Daniel J. Morrell was not considered cause for immediate concern.

Dispatcher Roy F. Dobson told the U.S. Coast Guard board of inquiry investigating the sinking that the ship was expected to report by radio only once every 24 hours. The Morrell's failure to report or to answer a radio call the morning of Nov. 10 prevented radio contact.

Think!

By M. V. CHERNUT

Over a period of two or three months now my mail has contained an unusually large proportion of letters concerning trees. It is to be expected, I suppose, that quite a few home owners should want to plant trees in Centennial year as a permanent memento of Canada's birthday, but the strange part about this influx of tree mail is that it is almost equally divided between folks who want to plant them and folks who want to know how to dig them up and destroy them!

At first thought, one would wonder why anyone would want to get rid of a tree which has taken so long to grow, but a tree planted in the wrong place can be a terrible headache in more ways than one.

The trouble is usually due to lack of imagination. A pretty little tree is purchased and planted where it will look nice NOW, without any regard as to what will happen in future years when the tree begins to reach its ultimate height and spread. There is no doubt whatever that a tree planted too near the house, too near a driveway, or too close to the property line can involve its owner in a lot of trouble, or possibly even in an expensive lawsuit.

It would be wise, in any Centennial plantings, to avoid planting any of the tall, fast-growing trees within 25 feet of the house, driveway or property line. A possible exception could be made in the case of the birch or the hawthorn, both of which are reasonably well behaved.

Trees planted too close to the property line can be the cause of a lot of bad feeling between neighbors. It may shade a portion of his garden where he wishes to grow sun-loving plants. Its roots will trespass, robbing his lawn, his garden and his soil of moisture and nutrients. A big branch may come down in a storm, damaging his home or his property, or the whole tree may topple over the wrong way.

The pruning of overhanging branches is another sore point, and one which is best settled amicably between the two parties. Under the law, your neighbor has the right to cut off all intruding branches right back to the property line, although he can't use the branches for firewood — they still belong to the tree's owner. He can also, if he wishes, dig down and sever all roots which are trespassing upon his property.

All of which does the tree a bit of no good. Under such hacking, it is so mutilated and so unbalanced, and its grip on the soil is so loosened, that it is more likely than ever to blow over, probably on to the owner's property as the tree will be heavier on that side. Who gets sued in such a case? I wouldn't know, but it is pretty obvious that nobody wins such a tree war.

Where such a bone of contention exists, I think a reasonable solution is for the two parties to settle for an expert pruning and thinning, and if necessary, bracing, by a professional tree man, with the tree owner picking up the tab. I don't think any reasonable man is going to object to a neighbor's tree as long as he can be assured that it isn't going to come crashing through the roof some stormy night.

The Plot Thickens

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Day saves California from being turned over to Richard Widmark.

"Let's be serious for a moment," Reagan said. "This isn't a movie. It's for real."

Where am I going to get seven hundred million dollars?"

A screenwriter said, "What about this? You're the governor and a syndicate run by Edward G. Robinson comes to you and says they'll give you seven hundred million dollars if they can open a gambling casino on Sunset Strip. You throw Robinson out of your office and he vows the mob will get you if it's the last thing they do."

"Gentlemen," said Reagan. "I've just been advised that Pat Brown has left me with a deficit of seven hundred million dollars."

"Gee," said a producer. "What a great idea for a musical."

The head of a studio said, "I see it more as a straight comedy with Ronnie arriving at the state capital as a clean, young politician who means well but gets caught up in a series of mishaps and finally with the help of Doris reends everyone to the gas chamber."

"Please, fellows," Reagan said. "It sounds great, but a picture like that won't make $700,000,000 even if Julie Andrews played my wife."

"Ronnie's right," a director said. "He'll never make it in a movie. But what about a television series? Ronnie plays the governor of a large state — we won't say which one — but everyone will know."

"Each episode will concern itself with the problem of a guy trying to do the right thing. But he's up against a rotten system left there by a previous administration."

"This is just off the top of my head, but suppose the students at the state university hold a demonstration against the administration. Ronnie calls up the National Guard commanded by Major General Glenn Ford."

"The general's son, Sal Mineo, is a private who was a coward in Viet Nam. But Mineo is going to prove himself to his father who has nothing but contempt for him."

"So Sal jumps out of his foxhole and attacks the university walls singlehanded. He wipes out the entire English department before he is cut down by a Student for Democratic Action."

"At the end of the program Ronnie presents Ford with the Legion of Merit awarded to Mineo posthumously. Ford is a grateful people, and he is no longer ashamed of his son."

Reagan said, "I like it, but can we come up with 39 episodes as good as this one?"

"Of course we can. We may not make $700,000,000 the first time around, but if the series is any good we'll get the dough out of the replays."

"I was hoping there was some easier way of raising the money," Reagan said wistfully. "Well," said a makeup man, "you could always raise taxes."

"Are you crazy?" said Reagan's press agent. "Do you want to wreck Ronnie's good guy image overnight?"

Sinatra as Hook?

GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — With Mia Farrow definite for Peter Pan, how about her ever-loving husband, Frank Sinatra, for Captain Hook? It would be a nice change of movie pace for Frankie who has really been living it up in New York. Mia, by the way, refers to her playmate as Charley—a popular sobriquet. President Johnson refers to George Hamilton as Charlie.

Joseph Cotten in Munich had an interesting house guest, Orson Welles, his pal from the old Mercury Theatre days. Orson asked Joe to direct him in Portrait of An Assassin, a mystery yarn.

Michael Caine will attend the New York premiere of Funeral in Berlin on the 21st. He asked boss Harry Saltzman, "May I remain in New York for New Year's Eve?" Nothing doing, said Harry, who wants him in Helsinki Jan. 2 for Billion Dollar Brain. I'm wondering whatever happened to Mike's romance with beautiful French actress Elizabeth Fry. He hasn't seen her for two months. Not so incidentally, Caine has a new pulsating love in Manhattan.

Frank Sinatra who has been having a ball in New York — literally — also has his new TV special Dec. 27. CBS has already slotted a re-run for May — December and May, the summing up of his marriage with 21-year-old Mia Farrow which seems to be doing swimmingly.

Ursula Andress is busy with Jean-Paul Belmondo, and one of her sisters is busy with the barbershop in Switzerland bought for her by Ursula, her other sister, Cathy Andress Gellish, lives in Boston and is happily married to a Harvard business school graduate.

Joe Levine is offering Susan Hayward an important role in The Ski Bum, and she will probably accept, to get her mind off the recent sad death of her husband, Eamon Chalkley. Author Len Deighton just loves to confuse his readers. On the paperback jacket of Funeral in Berlin, he describes himself as fair-complexioned, five feet, six inches, with a warm sense of humor. In Horse Under Water Deighton has changed to dark complexion, six feet tall, with a sardonic sense of humor. Yul Brynner does the same sort of thing when he is interviewed. Keeps changing his nationality and the place of his birth. Yul even changes his picture price. For the recent film with Britt Ekland in London, he received $250,000. For The Long Duel with Trevor Howard, Yul has jumped to $400,000.

I read somewhere there was trouble in Sean Connery's marriage with Diane Cilento. I won't believe this until Sean tells me himself. There was trouble a year or so ago, but that was cured when Diane's career took an upswing with the lead in Marjorie Rice's picture with Paul Newman, Hombre. While Diane is not violently ambitious, she is used to working as an actress and gets depressed when she isn't.

Children Rule

ROSENBERG

The 20th century was not very many days old, when a great discovery was announced.

"If I were asked," proclaimed one well-known American public figure, "what will be accounted the great discovery of this century, I would point unerringly to the little child as the one great discovery of the century!"

This "great discovery" has by now, some six decades later, become a mixed blessing.

For long centuries, society had overlooked the humanity of children and made them serve as mere foils for many coercive forms of authority.

True, this century — "the century of the child" — has seen the emancipation of childhood, a greater awareness of its human, educational and spiritual significance, and in general, has made our society more generous to children than has any other.

Yet, without, we have abandoned any semblance of parental authority under pressure of what may be properly called the "cult of child centeredness."

Our children are now so "central" to our society that we have gone to the foolish extreme of establishing them as our decision and taste makers.

It is now erroneously believed that in order to provide them early in life with a sense of security, they must be given every opportunity for self-expression and heaven help the parent who has a mind of his own!

We have moved ourselves into a new form of slavery by placing our backs too close to a new, man-made wall. Now, families seem never to work at the job of producing adults out of children.

In our zeal to sanctify their own private worlds as empires, children to be invaded by adult standards of moral responsibility, to be seen, as being no less, but billy, we are denying our surely no more, than what they children one of the major are — children!

Conservative MPs Think It Over

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative caucus will report back to the party's national association after holding a special policy meeting this weekend, it was announced Wednesday.

A statement was issued by Waldo Monteith, member for Perth, after a meeting of MPs.

It said the MPs will study policy on various matters in the light of recommendations made at last month's national meeting.

The announcement appeared to be an attempt to clarify the stand of the caucus, where 71 of the 95 MPs recently signed a statement supporting John Diefenbaker.

OTTAWA (CP) — "Davie Fulton, a possible candidate for the Conservative party leadership, fended off a persistent hooter at a student meeting Wednesday and refused to discuss John Diefenbaker's leadership."

Mr. Fulton, who held the works and justice portfolios in the Diefenbaker government, supported the national Conservative association's call for a leadership convention in 1967 but refused to "get into personalities."

CARLETON CLUB

He had to bat down a stubborn questioner at a meeting of the Carleton University Student Conservative Club.

The student asked Mr. Fulton why the party had kept Mr.

Sou'Wester Blows in Rare Visitors

You never know what stiff sou'wester will bring to Victoria. Visitor at left is kittiwake, rare here because they usually migrate south from Alaska well out to sea. Bird at right is mew gull, which nests in Alaska in summer but finds shelter here when autumn winds blow cold. Bird-watcher Ralph Fryer caught both visitors off Clover Point Monday with 500-millimetre telephoto lens.

Teamsters vs Brewery Men

Union Threat 'Law of the Jungle'

B.C. Federation of Labor president E. T. Staley of Victoria Wednesday branded Teamsters' Union threats to wage a raiding war on the brewery workers' union as "law of the jungle."

Mr. Staley commented on a statement by Ed Lawson of Vancouver, western Canadian president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, threatening retaliation raids.

Mr. Lawson said the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers has attempted to raid Teamsters' Local 181 which represents 320 workers at Sun-Rype Products Ltd. in Kelowna.

"The gloves are off," he said. "We plan to hit brewery locals throughout B.C."

"We also intend a major drive to organize members of other Canadian Labor Congress affiliates such as the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Union in the Interior."

Mr. Lawson said the raid on the Teamsters was being organized by Local 300 business agent Joe Madden of the brewery union and CLC general West Coast representative W. G. Gauld.

Mr. Gauld said the Sun-Rype be protected against raiding.

workers "wanted out" and "were unhappy with the Teamsters ... and wanted representation from another union."

Mr. Staley said he felt Mr. Lawson would be better advised to use his influence toward bringing the Teamsters into the 1,200,000-member CLC, and "we would go forward as a united body."

"The Teamsters would then be protected against raiding," he said. "Mr. Lawson, however, seems to prefer the law of the jungle to the CLC's civilized type of conduct."

Mr. Staley said Mr. Lawson was the main opponent to the Teamsters' rejoining the Congress.

"Many Teamsters would like to be back in the CLC," he said.

'A Little Praiseworthy Planning'

OTTAWA (CPI)—The defence department said Wednesday the "Royal Canadian Air Force" lettering was removed briefly from an Expediter aircraft and replaced by "Canadian Armed Forces" for purposes of photographing the result.

"The new lettering was washed off and the 'RCAF' re-lettering was done as soon as the pictures were taken," a spokesman said. "The plane didn't even leave the hangar." It was based at Rivers, Man.

The new lettering was Robert McCleave (PC—Halls) added. The government's proposed legislation for integration of the armed forces would drop the RCAF title and make the air force part of the combined Canadian Armed Forces. The department spokesman said the particular Expediter was selected because it was due for a new paint job anyhow.

Food Costs Alone Down As Price Index Mounts

OTTAWA (CP) — Food was cheaper in November but price changes on other items in the family budget pushed Canada's consumer price index slightly higher.

The index stood at 145.5 as November began, an increase of one-tenth of one per cent from a month earlier and 3.8 per cent higher than November, 1965, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

The improvement in food prices from October to November was six-tenths of one per cent.

SEASONAL CUTS

The bureau reported lower prices for chicken, all cuts of beef, all pork except smoked ham, and all other meat and fish items except veal chops and sausages.

Seasonal reductions occurred among root vegetables, cabbage, fresh fruits except oranges, and sugar. Prices were slightly lower for eggs, butter, dairy products, infants' food, tea, instant coffee, shortening and frozen orange juice.

But the listings were higher for turkeys, smoked ham, veal chops, margarine, corn flakes regular coffee, tomatoes, celery and lettuce.

The bad news for consumers was concentrated in the cost of housing and clothing.

Housing, three-tenths of one per cent higher in November, was affected by increased rents, more expensive repairs, accelerated property taxes, and jumps in furniture, textiles, some utensils and most supplies and services.

Clothing was half a percentage point up. It was a general trend that covered men's wear, children's wear and footwear, with a lesser increase in women's wear.

MORE EXPENSIVE

Among other components of the index, health and personal care was fully one per cent more expensive with changes in haircuts and hairdressing and to a lesser extent, in prescriptions and other pharmaceutical items.

Sporting equipment and motion picture admissions cost more and pushed the recreation and reading group up 1.3 per cent. Scattered price increases for cigarettes caused the tobacco and alcohol group to move one-tenth of one per cent higher.

The index, which does not claim to be a full measure of the cost of living, is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

It records changes on a selection of goods and services representing purchases by families of two to six, living in centres of 30,000 population and more, with annual incomes ranging from $2,500 to $7,000 in 1957.

Woman Hurt In Crash

A woman driver in fairly good condition with chest injuries in St. Joseph's Hospital after her car was involved in an accident with a truck on William Head Road Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Elsie Kerr, 1028 William Head Road, was believed to have been returning home, having forgotten her wallet.

Colwood RCMP identified the truck driver as James Crawford of the navy's transportation service. Police said roads were icy.

Trustee Candidates

Report Concern of Most

Carrying out the recommendations of the Hartick-Downey report on Greater Victoria's school administration is the aim of the majority of school board candidates.

Nine candidates are seeking election Saturday to four seats on the board, which represents Victoria, Oak Bay, urban Saatchi and Esquimalt.

Only in Esquimalt will there be no election for a trustee.
Incumbent Leslie Karagianis was returned by acclamation on nomination day.

THREE FOR ONE
The single Victoria seat is being contested by three candidates, none of them incumbents.

Ted Wood, a moving company owner-manager, is trying to regain the seat he lost in last year's election.

He would like to see the board re-evaluate its school building program for possible savings.
He also favors a provincial income tax for education so that the burden is lifted from the home-owner alone.

Mr. Wood wants implementation of most recommendations
in the Hartick-Downey survey.

She has read both the Chant and Hartick-Downey reports and feels principals and teachers need more help with paperwork so they can get on with teaching.

Mrs. Temple would push for social workers and psychologists second try for election.

Dr. Jameson, a dentist, was first elected in 1962. He is chairman of the board's education committee.

"The big job for the board in the coming year is to carry out the practical recommendations of the (Hartick-Downey) report," he says. "My reason for running is to make sure this is done."

Mrs. Ellinor, mother of three daughters and a past president of the board's finance committee, was first elected in 1960. He is another candidate who endorses most of the Hartick-Downey report.

FIRST ELECTION
Another concern of Mr. Curran is channelling non-academic students into the proper vocational training.

Mr. Wood wants implementation of most recommendations
in the Hartick-Downey survey.

A man is needed to provide a "father image," he feels.
The Oak Bay seat on the school board is being contested by incumbent Dr. Carron Jameson and housewife Dorothy Ellinor, who is making her second try for election.

woman's viewpoint is being recognized at higher government levels.

Mrs. Ellinor is a strong advocate of more equitable education financing, more federal aid for education, and implementation of the Hartick-Downey report.

URBAN SAATCHI
Two incumbents and two newcomers are trying for the two vacant seats representing urban Saatchi on the Greater Victoria School Board. (Rural Saatchi residents are represented by the Saatchi School Board, to which there will be no election this year.)

George Curran, a computer programmer and chairman of the board's finance committee, was first elected in 1960. He is another candidate who endorses most of the Hartick-Downey
report.

tional training.

tion of most recommendations

Dr. Donald Shorting was appointed by the government in 1965 to represent Saatchi on the board. This is the first election for the medical doctor.

He would work to implement the "desirable and feasible" recommendations of the report, and is concerned with building more classrooms and replacing older schools.

Dr. Shorting also wants more classroom enrichment for both bright and dull students. A special class for pupils with poor sight would be a good idea, he says.

CONCERNED AS FATHER
Denis Glew, 45, a forester, has lived here for the past 11 years and is the father of twin daughters.

"As a parent I'm concerned about getting the best education for my children," he says as his reason for running.

He is interested in reducing class sizes and getting more and better teaching equipment.
Reginald Parlyby, fourth candidate for Saatchi, is a construction supervisor making his first bid for public office. He has lived in the area since 1958 and is married to an ex-teacher.
They have two children.

MONEY WASTED
He would work for smaller classes and would try to standardize classrooms.

Mr. Parlyby feels strongly that money is being wasted on school construction.

"Our job is teaching, not building monuments," he says.

A fine was considered too lenient by Magistrate William Ostler in the case of Lasso Vasko, 441 Beta, charged in Central Magistrate's Court Wednesday with theft under $50 from Canada Safeway.

Magistrate Ostler said he could talk as much as he wanted to about this kind of theft, but no one paid any attention.

OPEN SEASON

Prosecutor John Macintyre agreed that certain people seemed to feel Christmas was an open season for thefts. "These people seem to think it is open season all year round," said the magistrate. He sentenced Vasko to 14 days.

Two 17-year-olds who pleaded guilty to stealing a car Dec. 3 were remanded until Dec. 15 for a pre-sentence report.

Courtroom Parade

1200 block Topaz and used by John Thomas Lyons, Vancouver, and Allan Thomas Laatch, 576 Heatherley, to drive around Victoria.

The boys were picked up at 1:15 p.m. Dec. 4 by Colwood RCMP.

"Warning people about this sort of thing seems to be like beating the air," said Magistrate Ostler when he fined Geoffrey Andrews, 3156 Carroll, $40 for having a loaded gun in his car Dec. 6.

"The fines are going to go up if this sort of thing continues," he said as he fined Patrick Scott, 1923 Shakespeare, $40 for a similar offence.

Elwood R. Katona, of Nanaimo, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft in connection with a break-in at the O.K. Tire Store here Nov. 4.

Magistrate Ostler was told he and three other Nanaimo men forced the rear door of the shop and made off with 10 tires valued at $250.

He was remanded until Dec. 13 for a pre-sentence report.

Bruce Herman Steeves, 450 Simcoe, was fined $350 and had his driver's licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving Dec. 5.

Court was told he was first spotted on Broad Street, then he turned onto Johnson. He was clocked at speeds of 40 to 60 miles an hour, but slowed down before he was pulled over.

When asked if he had been drinking, he said he had had "a few."

In traffic court, Warren Sargent, 574 Broadway, and Wayne R. Forbes, 771 Station Road, were fined $35 and Esther F. Miller, 1017 Costin, was fined $40 on careless driving charges.

Crime in U.S. On Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Crime in the United States rose 10 per cent during the first nine months of this year, compared with the same period last year, the FBI reports.

Once again, suburban areas continued to lead the upward trend, with crime surging 12 per cent.

Orbiter Moon Films Halt

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The high-power transmitter on the United States' Lunar Orbiter 2 spacecraft has failed, leaving it unable to send its last close-up pictures of the moon back to earth.

Although the photographic assignment was virtually completed before the malfunction Tuesday night, engineers will try for several days to coax the transmitter back to life.

SEEK TROUBLE

"We are extremely tickled that we got as many pictures as we did," a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Langley Research Centre said Wednesday. "But we want to know exactly what the trouble is so the next spacecraft will not be susceptible to the same disease."

Orbiter 2 had transmitted more than 97 per cent of its stored photographs when its transmitter failed to respond to orders from a tracking station at Woomera, Australia.

INFORMATION

Left aboard are only three or four high resolution pictures of one potential astronaut landing site on the eastern side of the moon's face, just north of the equator. Wide angle pictures from that site and partial coverage with a high resolution camera have already been received.

Although the final photographs may be lost, the spacecraft is continuing to gather and transmit information on radiation, meteoroids, and the gravitational field of the moon.

Satellite Nears Target

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — America's new trans-Pacific satellite obeyed commands from earth Wednesday and drifted slowly to its parking spot over Christmas Island, where it will keep an eye on a third of the world's weather and serve as a radio-TV relay.

The combination weather-communications moonlet, called an Applications Technology Satellite, has one goal — to perform various types of work in space to help its successors better serve man on earth.

The spacecraft, launched Tuesday, was reported working well, but it will not begin full operation until it drifts to its final station above Christmas Island in the central Pacific in two weeks.

From its lofty vantage point, ATS was expected to be able to watch one-third of the world's weather constantly, ranging from the east coast of the United States to mid-Australia and from Canada's Hudson Bay to southern South America.

Admiralty Case Ends Today

Admiralty Court here probably will wind up the sitting today on an action taken by the Victoria Machinery Depot against the Greek steamship Mimina.

Deputy District Judge of Admiralty Mr. Justice F. A. Shepherd is presiding over the hearing on the VMD claim that the ship's owners, Motorways de Panama de Piraeus, Greece, owe $6,994 on a bill for repairs and materials dating back to November, 1964, in Chemainus. The claim includes interest at four per cent.

Mimina's owners have offered to pay $3,500, maintaining the bill should not have exceeded $5,000.

Final Tally Boosts Majority

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Final results in Australia's Nov. 26 election showed Tuesday that the ruling Liberal-Country coalition will have 82 seats in parliament, 10 more than previously.

Labor will have 41 — 11 less than last time — and there will be one independent.

The election was fought mainly on Australia's participation in the Viet Nam war. The Labor party opposed it.

Secret Shelf Letter

Did B.C. Balk U.S. Lab?

By JACK FRY, Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett has a secret letter which explains why B.C. last week hastily slapped a Crown reserve on Canada's Pacific continental shelf, it was learned Wednesday.

It now is believed the government laid claim to the shelf in an effort to thwart the plans of a large U.S. research firm to establish an underwater base of operations off the coast of B.C. It could not be determined whether these plans were of a commercial or military nature, and several large firms reached in California and Washington, D.C., denied any knowledge of the venture.

REASON WHY

Premier Bennett earlier brushed aside the Crown reserve with the comment that the government simply wanted "to stop squatters sneaking in." He would neither deny nor confirm reports that he had a letter in his possession relating to the continental shelf. "There must be some mystery in politics," he said.

HAD HEARING

But Attorney-General Bonner, who initiated the unusual action, confirmed the existence of a letter addressed to the premier, which had some bearing on the government's decision.

"I've seen such a letter. It contained a tangible indication of activity offshore," said the attorney-general. He said the government had been informed of these activities as a courtesy, but he could not remember whom the letter came from.

NO PROVISION

The government order was rammed through so rapidly last Friday that it contained no provision for continuation of the day-to-day operations now being carried out in coastal waters.

As an afterthought, the provincial cabinet Tuesday passed an amendment exempting log-dumping, booming or storage, oyster and other mollusc fishery, barge or ship moorings, marine gas stations and canneries or fish camps. At the time the government laid claim to its share of the continental shelf, Mr. Bonner said it was acting to protect the future interests of British Columbians, in view of the recent undersea research developments which had taken place in the U.S.

U.S. SEALAB

He said he was certain that techniques perfected in such experiments as the U.S. Navy's underwater Sealab in California would in time be used to "mine and deal with the terrain which lies beneath the water."

Confirmation of the existence of a letter to the premier led to speculation that it related to the question of an underwater research station off the B.C. coast.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A witness told Wednesday what he knew of the bugging of hotel rooms occupied by union delegates and said he had literally been left holding the bag after the operation.

Howard William McAnish, former assistant to private investigator Weldon Graham, told a royal commission inquiry that on Graham's instructions he booked into the Ritz Hotel under an assumed name Nov. 2.

WITH BAGGAGE

On Nov. 7, at a time when he knew two other rooms were supposedly bugged, Graham left him in another room with some baggage and then left.

McAnish said he expected Graham back but about three hours later seven or eight police officers moved in and seized the baggage containing the bugging equipment.

"I was very unhappy about it," McAnish told Commissioner R. A. Sargent. He said he quit Graham's employ the same day.

McIlraith:
'Blackmail'

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA—Single-handed, a Quebec separatist has blocked the government's plan to put 10,000 men back to work and stop a West Coast work stoppage that is costing millions of dollars a day.

Gilles Gregoire, the independent MP for Lapointe, ignored impassioned appeals from all parties to let the government bend the rules and bring in legislation to end the strikes today.

After half an hour of pleas, government House Leader George McIlraith, fighting hard to control his rage, said: "I don't believe that any parliamentarian can afford to have parliament as a whole blackmailed."

Mr. Gregoire formerly was a member of the Creditiste Party, but quit this year because he believed in a separate status for Quebec, to be obtained by peaceful means.

A Bitter Blow

His action in the commons Wednesday was a bitter blow for French-English relations, and many westerners saw it just that way.

In his appeal to Mr. Gregoire, New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas said:

"If we are to have any type of national unity and national identity, it will have to come from recognizing not only the problems in our own provinces, but also the problems of people in other parts of Canada."

Mr. Gregoire refused to give unanimous consent to allow the Commons to sit in special session at 11 a.m. today to deal with legislation to appoint a public administrator to end the work stoppage.

The government needs unanimous consent to change rules or proceed with legislation unless it gives 40-hours notice.

In the national emergency caused by the West Coast stoppage, it gambled that it would be given permission to hold the special session and to introduce the legislation immediately.

When the Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. today, its regular sitting time, the government would again have to ask for unanimous consent, this time to introduce the legislation.

If it is not given, the legislation could not be introduced before Monday, at colonial extra cost for the nation.

Last night, attempts were being made to persuade Mr. Gregoire to cooperate today.

Mr. Gregoire's obstruction was based on his belief that the government was not facing up to the problem of keeping open

Both Sides Sue As Docks Wait

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shipping on the west coast was still at a standstill Wednesday while both sides in a longshore dispute waited for federal action. (See also Page 5.)

A spokesman for striking longshore foremen said his group is opposed to trusteeship and administrators but, if such legislation is passed, the foremen have no choice but to obey the law.

A spokesman for maritime employers said an administrator as proposed by the government would have to ask the companies to call out longshore gangs, ask foremen to resume work and instruct the longshore union to make its members work in a "normal fashion."

Meanwhile, longshoremen and longshore foremen filed separate damage writs in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday.

The ILWU writ asks a court declaration that the companies have conspired to break the collective agreement by locking out the longshoremen.

The other writ, by the foremen's local of the ILWU, claims foremen's fundamental rights of freedom of assembly were breached by the companies.

U.S. Arrests, Frees Mayor

Major Flap in Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. military police disarmed and handcuffed the mayor of Saigon early today after he was reported creating a disturbance and firing a machine-gun on the city waterfront.

Mayor Van Van Cua, 40, a paratrooper colonel and doctor, was taken enraged and shouting to a police station where he was released after his identity was established.

The U.S. embassy expressed regret, but not an apology, over the incident, and began an investigation.

U.S. officials said an MP jeep patrol found a man had been firing across the Saigon River near a floating restaurant about 3 a.m., during curfew hours, and a small crowd had collected.

The MPs said the man had been drinking and pointed the gun at them. They slapped it away, trussed him—finding a revolver, and handcuffed him before Vietnamese MPs took him to police headquarters.

Witnesses said the mayor at first demanded Prime Minister Ky or U.S. Ambassador Lodge unlock his handcuffs but left after a U.S. diplomat appeared.

The mayor's office said he paid $4.50 to a night club when an American could not pay for his drinks. The American then accused the mayor of stealing his wallet and, in an ensuing dispute, Cua fired his revolver. The American called U.S. MPs.

Hellyer Starts Final Big Sell

One Force 'Right for All'

OTTAWA (Special)—Defence Minister Hellyer, starting the final "big sell" of unification, Wednesday called it right for the nation, for the force and for the men and women who serve in it.

It was the start of second reading of the unification bill and, after a one-day skirmish, it was put off until a later date. A marathon debate is certain.

The first reaction to Mr. Hellyer's 65-page speech came from Conservative Marcel Lambert, who charged the government is putting Canada's defence into the hands of the U.S.

The government, he said, is turning Canada's forces into a peacekeeping force for the UN.

But peacekeeping is no longer "in good odor" at the UN, he claimed. "We would have to rely more and more," Mr. Lambert said, "on the U.S. to defend us in future attacks."

"We would have to look to the presence of U.S. troops and installations on Canadian soil."

This way, he said, Canada would become a satrap of the U.S.

And how much acceptance of Canada's peacekeeping forces would there be at the UN if Canada were a satrap of the U.S.?

In defence of his bill, the final act of unification of the armed forces, ushering in a single green uniform and a single-rank structure, Mr. Hellyer said:

"The object of this bill is not to destroy and erase in one stroke the traditions of the past but to build, on the solid foundation we have forged, a strong and viable force to meet Canada's needs of tomorrow."

He promised Canada's influence, and its capacity to act in favor of peace and

'Defence in Jeopardy If Forces are United'

HALIFAX (CP)—Rear-Admiral William Landymore, fired from the navy for his opposition to unification of the armed services, Wednesday unleashed a blistering denunciation of the program.

The 50-year-old former sea operations chief said unification would "kill effective defence of Canada, crush morale in the three services and spark a mass exodus of serving officers and men. (See also Page 18.)"

Admiral Landymore said Defence Minister Hellyer "has no regard whatsoever for the state of morale in the navy" and wants to spend $50,000,000—the price of two replenishment ships—to put servicemen in uniforms most of them don't want.

He described his fight against unification as "the

Mount View Drive

Girls and 500 Both Winners

Girls beat boys Wednesday in Mount View Senior Secondary School's United Nations club penny drive.

But the real winners are the 500 neediest families in the Greater Victoria area who will share receipts of the drive.

A total of 4,724 pennies lined the auditorium floor, 2,380 of them set out by girls.

Donations by a student of 50 cents or more earned him—and it seems, more often, her—an award of a red, blood-drop badge which read, "I gave till it hurt."

Signs throughout the school asked, "Are you hurting?"

It's just such drives that make the Colonist 500 Fund click.

Over its 10-year history, the fund has had the backing of thousands upon thousands of students with various schemes for collecting money.

Also numerous have been the adult clubs, associations and fraternities which have either donated outright or conducted drives to benefit the 500 fund.

A feature that appeals to every donor is that there are no administration costs involved. Every cent collected goes to the 500 neediest families as selected by welfare agencies.

Lack of toys this year has forced the sad disappearance of an annual toy auction which always sizeably bolstered fund receipts.

Mount View is the first school in the area to contribute to this year's fund, but there has been an indication a drive is being considered in at least one other school.

Wednesday the fund jumped $388.64 to $5,340.39. The total assures each of the 500 needy families a cheque of slightly more than $10 for Christmas. Last year for the first time

Landymore

Landymore Fires Broadside at Unification

most important duty it has been my privilege to discharge.

Full unification of the three services was ineffective, uneconomic, destructive and "change for the sake of change."

Admiral Landymore's remarks are contained in a 28-page brief which he prepared for presentation to the Canadian defence committee.

He said his prepared testimony would be "irrelevant" after second reading of the bill in the Commons — approval in principle of legislation which would unite the army, navy and air force into a single force.

"The public has been duped into believing unification is the end all and be all of integration," the admiral says in his brief. "I predict it will be the end of effective defence for Canada and I don't envy you (the committee) your task of explaining your mistake if you support it."

"This shrinkage (of manpower) is largely due to misplaced enthusiasm for the untimely experiment of unification."

The brief, written in both English and French, concludes with the words:

"If I have failed to impress you with the potential danger to the country's defence of following the minister's headlong rush to full unification, then I have failed in the most important duty it has been my privilege to discharge."

"Everyone I know who has done any thinking on the subject has come to the conclusion it would be a mistake to unify now; that even five years from now might be too soon and furthermore 'that never is probably the solution.'"

He says claims that the middle-ranks support the unification plan amount to "sheer conjecture for certainly no one in the commands has been asked his views. In Halifax ... officers of all ranks made it perfectly clear this was not their point of view."

"Every aspect of full unification seems to be to be less effective, less economic, destructive in morale and amounts to a change for the sake of change."

He said officers and men now serving voluntarily joined "only one of the three services."

If a single service becomes law and every officer and man is transferred into it with no choice in the matter, you can be assured the servicemen won't like it."

"While conscription is perhaps not a completely accurate word to use under these circumstances, it is the word the servicemen will use."

If servicemen are given the

From Page 1

settlement of disputes — that endanger peace, would grow.

The present division into three services, he said, imposes restrictions on growth.

These should be moved in the interest of the most effective defence force and of the men and women who belong to it.

The bill, he said, has nothing to do with the question of naval forces, land forces, air forces or even space forces.

It has to do with management, planning, training, support and capacity of the force to adjust to changing requirements. And the ability of the force to provide meaningful, challenging and rewarding careers for service personnel.

"All of these needs," Mr. Melley said, "are enhanced by unification."

He said that, in approaching the problem of defence, the facts are clear and indisputable:

"Either the defence budget had to be substantially increased or substantial cost cuts had to be made."

The integration-unification process will make important cost cuts, he added.

The concept of a single service, he said, raises questions of identity, of spirit and esprit de corps.

But he predicted that, in the single force, "We will continue to have intense loyalties to the fighting units and broader associations within it."

Meeting Tonight

Pollution Society To Form

CAMPBELL RIVER—Citizens interested in forming a pollution control society here have scheduled a mass meeting for tonight.

Joseph J. Cvetkovich, who ran unsuccessfully as a Liberal in the Sept. 12 provincial election, said citizens are concerned over pollution of Buttle Lake.

He said the society, similar to those formed in other Vancouver Island communities, will fill the vacuum created by what he called the "inefficiency" of the provincial Pollution Control Board.

BUTLE LAKE

Mr. Cvetkovich feels the board is not doing its job in assuring Buttle Lake, the water supply source for Campbell River, will not be polluted.

Earlier this year the board approved an application by Western Mines Ltd. to dump mine tailings and treated effluent into the lake.

ASKS WHEN

Mr. Cvetkovich, a 33-year-old lawyer, has written to the deputy provincial secretary demanding to know when the board will hold an appeal hearing on its decision.

He received a reply saying no hearing was planned because the case is still before the B.C. Appeal Court.

Mr. Cvetkovich is considering applying for a court order to force a hearing.

LEGAL ASPECTS

He said the courts can deal only with the legal aspects of the issue. What is of more concern to the people of Campbell River is the moral aspect, he feels.

Last month Mr. Cvetkovich blasted B.C. Liberal leader Ray Perrault for not getting into the Buttle Lake pollution fight. In his reply, Mr. Perrault said the attack was unjustified.

Tonight's meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. at Campbell River junior high, will feature two speakers—Howard Paish, executive director of B.C. Wildlife Federation, and Tom Parkin of the Fishermen's Union.

$2,000 Objective

Christmas Kettle Returns

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — The familiar Christmas Cheer Kettle reappeared on Port Alberni streets Tuesday, and will be with us each Friday and Saturday in an effort to raise $2,000 for this year's Christmas welfare and winter relief.

Captain Alan Neelon, taking stock of requirements during his first winter in the Valley, expressed his surprise that so much help is required in an area where better-than-average wages and a high employment rate prevail.

NO BUREAU

Worst of all, there's no local Christmas bureau to help share the burden.

"Truthfully, it's hard to know where to start," the captain said. "I hope that all those organizations and individuals who plan to make up and distribute Christmas hampers will get in touch with me."

"By working together, we can see that each needy family receives some help, and that our efforts are not overlapping, giving some too much and others nothing at all."

PROVIDE LIST

Welfare officials provide the Salvation Army with a list of people on welfare with children. After that, the Salvation Army must find a way to do the rest, with the help of Valley residents.

"The $2,000 we hope to raise this year is not just for Christmas hampers, but to take care of all our winter relief needs," Captain Neelon explained.

"We are constantly being asked to help burned out families and others in distress, and we simply do not get the furniture to do this these days."

STORAGE SPACE

Out-of-season clothes cannot be junked — they have to be stored somewhere. And quite naturally, out-of-season clothes are often sent to the Salvation Army for just that reason.

The toys, collected and refurbished by the Jaycee-Ettes, Jaycees and Rangers, will go to swell the Salvationists' Christmas hampers, but much more is still needed in the way of food and other items.

CANNING WOES

"We have to sound choicy, but we do ask people not to give home-canned foods in glass jars," the captain explained.

"We depend on volunteer help in packing, and volunteer delivery services. And it takes just one broken jar to ruin the contents of a whole parcel."

If you'd like to help out and be sure your Christmas hamper goes where it will be truly needed, Captain Neelon will gladly receive your phone call at 723-7812.

Oil Permit Received

DUNCAN—The provincial government has granted petroleum and natural gas permit for exploration in the Maple Bay area.

A few weeks ago the recently-formed Sambo Petroleum Company, along with George Whittaker, applied for this permit after some flammable liquid was discovered accidentally early in October when a ditch was dug.

The permit will cover an area of more than 11,900 acres at Maple Bay, Genoa Bay, Cowichan Bay and Salt Spring Island.

Mr. Whittaker told North Cowichan council last week first drilling operations probably would be undertaken next fall near Maple Bay.

Snow Brings Cheer to Youngsters

Old Man Winter made its intentions well known around Island Wednesday as snow began its descent from higher levels, hitting heavily in some areas. In Nanaimo, there was no heavy snow Wednesday, but there was enough to create playground-like activities for young students going to school. In background is St. James Anglican Church.—(Agnes Flett)

Teen-Agers' Impressions

Brannan Boys 'Really Polite'

By MARIE CADORETTE

DUNCAN — Five Teen Town members found their recent visit to Brannan Lake School for Boys interesting.

The quintet — Rhonda Miller, Linda Garstide, Richard Calverley, Coleen Garstide and Caroline Blacklock — were with a group of 12 Teen Towners who presented Brannan Lake honor students with a TV set.

The purchase of the set became a teen project after a visit to the school by Adult Advisor Jim Quaide disclosed that the boys were in need of one.

The project was financed by two dances and a substantial donation from a Duncan firm. The five teens were all impressed with the school and the boys.

"I thought they were really nice," remarked Miss Blacklock. "They were really polite."

Miss Miller said she was "really surprised," noting there were no bars on the windows except in the security rooms.

Said Miss Garstide: "It's just like a school — an ordinary place."

When asked if they felt the public should be more informed about the school, the girls said:

"I never knew what it was like until I went there," said Miss Blacklock, who also feels public should be more informed on the Brannan Lake school.

Miss Garstide replied: "I thought it was some kind of prison house, but everyone has the wrong impression of Brannan Lake school."

Said Miss Miller: "They (Brannan Lake boys) aren't big apes or anything. They just made a mistake."

Did they think the visit helped the boys?

"We're trying to do whatever we can," said Teen Town Mayor Mr. Calverley. "We want to encourage the others to become honor students."

Did he think there would be a Teen Town of a sort at Brannan Lake?

"Not really," he retorted. "There are no girls."

But he added the boys could undertake similar projects, such as holding sports night or other money-raising events.

Do the boys need any more recreation?

"I don't think so," said Miss Miller. "They have as much as they can handle now — I mean they have swimming, sailing ... just about everything."

But Caution Still Needed

Island Repulses White Stuff

Vancouver Island has managed to dig its way out of its first honest-to-goodness snowfall this winter, although the heaviest fall is still clogging the road from Alberni to Tofino.

In other areas, snow and cold weather are proving little hindrance to traffic, but a boon to youngsters with sleds and toboggans.

The mill's personnel manager Jack Gallagher said Wednesday the kraft mill will assume full production Sunday and the entire mill will be working Monday.

"We were able to find enough storage space," he said.

Department of highways crews have salted the highway over the Malahat and the road into Cowichan Lake.

Highway 19 has been salted between Qualicum and Courtenay, and is reported in good condition for motorists to travel, but side roads in all areas between are reported to be slippery.

Light snow is reported still on the ground at Courtenay, and the outlying regions of Port Alberni and Qualicum.

Campbell River and Port Alberni have been plagued with a rash of minor traffic accidents, but there was nothing of the kind reported in other Island centres.

The hump of the highway into Port Alberni is plowed, police report, but snow tires or chains are necessary still.

Roads in the vicinity of Nanaimo are reported in good condition, with snow only in the higher areas.

In the Sooke to Port Renfrew vicinity, four inches of snow fell in Tuesday night's storm, but roads in the region are now almost clear for traffic.

RCMP at Sooke reported a washout one mile east of Point Roberts, when "half a hill" came down over the highway.

However, the road was passable by 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

More snow and cooler temperatures are forecast for the next few days, so that it will still be advisable to carry chains or use snow tires in travelling Island highways.

High Tides Go Higher and Higher

High tides are in evidence in Nanaimo, and here men are forced to walk downhill from floats to shore as floats are higher than wharf attached to land. High tides are causing concern but no serious threat is seen. Tides have been above normal high foot or more. Experts say they have been caused by combination of two factors—southeasterly winds in Juan de Fuca Strait and heavier-than-normal rains. One day this week tide hit 15-foot mark, instead of 13 feet, four inches.—(Agnes Flett)

Election Picture

Candidates Desire Harmony

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN—The desire for more co-operation and harmony has entered the civic election picture here.

None of the six candidates contesting three North Cowichan council seats is opposed to an amalgamation between Duncan and North Cowichan.

The six candidates are incumbents, councillors Dennis Hogan, George Whittaker and Gerry Smith, and hopefuls Tom Burge, Earl English and Joseph Haddock.

On matters such as annexation of part of North Cowichan by the city of Duncan and the controversial Fuller's Lake Arena, the opinions of the contestants are divided.

Coun. Hogan stressed an amalgamation of the city with the whole of the municipality would be much better than annexation of part of North Cowichan by the city.

He said, "I think amalgamation will take a long time. In the Alberni Valley it took a long time for Alberni and Port Alberni to join."

"However, I would like to see more harmony and unity in this area, many people talk about it but only few practise it."

Commentation of the construction of the arena has been delayed because of legal difficulties.

Coun. Hogan said, "I still want to see the Fuller's Lake Arena built."

"The population in our area warrants two arenas, one at Fuller's Lake and another one in the south."

Coun. Whittaker, while adamant in his opinion the arena should not be built at Fuller's Lake, emphasized he would "agree 100 per cent" to an amalgamation of the whole of the North Cowichan municipality with the city of Duncan.

Lower Taxes?

Taxes in the city would be lowered and at the same time the amalgamated area could afford top professional services, he said.

Coun. Whittaker strongly opposes an annexation proposal because it may double the taxes for the people now living in the North Cowichan municipality.

He said it is likely the people who approached the city to be annexed did so out of frustration because the municipal hall will be moved while Duncan is the heart of the community.

Commenting on the Fuller's Lake Arena proposal, Coun. Whittaker said: "I am not unfriendly towards the Chemainus people. They should have an arena right in Chemainus where fire and police protection is close at hand."

"Every day we hear of children being killed on the highway. With an arena right in Chemainus we would not have this danger."

Coun. Smith said the amalgamation question should be handled by the provincial municipal affairs department.

Campbell's Job

"Mr. Campbell or his deputy should look into this," he said. On the annexation problem: "Why doesn't the city of Duncan come back and join the municipality."

"After all they broke away. They (the city) should not only try to annex the built-up area of our municipality which is the cream, but also should take in some of the unorganized area."

"However, I think this question of annexation also should go to the municipal affairs department."

Mr. Burge feels amalgamation would be affected.

He's In Favor

Mr. English said, "Yes, I am in favor of a complete amalgamation. It would cut down duplication of services and costs."

"If it is properly presented to the people, I think they will go for it."

"As far as annexation of part of the municipality is concerned, if people wish to go to the city, by all means let them do it."

"Only the people affected should decide that."

"I think it could be a first move towards eventual amalgamation."

Mr. English, who has resided in the Chemainus area for many years, said he is satisfied with the location of the proposed arena at Fuller's Lake.

One of the strongest opponents of the Fuller's Lake Arena, Mr. Haddock repeated his stand that the proposed site of the building would not serve the majority of the people.

In reference to amalgamation or annexation, he said amalgamation would cut out duplication of services and one of the two local governments.

He stressed, "We all have a common objective and it is about time to give up the parochial attitude and to work towards a common goal."

He said if amalgamation does not come the city of Duncan should expand its boundaries to the north.

Village Holds Breath

PARKSVILLE — Something unusual for Parksville at the local political level is an all-candidate forum being arranged by Parksville and District Chamber of Commerce.

Although this type of forum has been held for provincial and federal candidates in the past, there has never been much preparation for municipal elections.

There are five candidates contesting two seats on the village commission this year.

They are Edward J. Waller, (incumbent) retired; Mrs. Margaret H. E. Haworth, retired school teacher; Robert V. Doughty, logger; Kenneth A. Vander Haeghe, sales manager; and William F. MacDonald, mechanic.

This is only the second time highway, north of Nanaimo.

Erratic Driving Man's Downfall

NANAIMO — Ole Marland, 62, of Wellington, was fined $25, and was prohibited from driving for six months, except for work, for impaired driving.

He had been observed driving in erratic manner, weaving on the highway, north of Nanaimo.

Canadiens on Way Back Win Third Straight, 6-3

TORONTO 3, MONTREAL 6
BOSTON 3, NEW YORK 4

Montreal Canadiens are coming back. Wednesday night they mounted their fiercest and most successful offence of the season to upset Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3, in National Hockey League action in Montreal.

It was the first time the Canadiens have scored more than three goals in one game this season and it gave them their third straight win.

GETTING CLOSE

The Canadiens are in fourth place, three points behind the New York Rangers with three games in hand.

The win streak began when captain Jean Beliveau hit from the point after a run of injuries. His third period goal came on a blinding wrist shot that left Johnny Bower helpless.

In other NHL action, Rod Gilbert scored his ninth and 10th goals of the season in the second period to give New York Rangers a 4-2 victory over Boston Bruins in New York.

The win moved the Rangers into a tie for second place with Chicago.

In Montreal, Eddie Shack was knocked out cold in a head-to-head collision with Canadiens' defenceman Ted Harris in the third period.

Shack had to be helped from the ice and was taken to the clinic where he needed 15 stitches to close a bad cut over his right eye. He was admitted to hospital for observation.

Harris was left groggy by the crash and the home crowd of 14,722 booed when referee Art Skov assessed him a major penalty for elbowing.

Henri Richard's first period goal was the 250th of his career and he moves into the circle of only 18 players to score at least 250 goals in NHL play.

All three Toronto goals came with Canadiens short-handed as they outplayed the Leafs.

Next games: Tonight—New York at Detroit, Chicago at Boston.

Jim Pappin, Tim Horton and George Armstrong scored.

FOUR GOALKEEPERS

Both teams used their two goalkeepers as Charlie Hodge took over from Gump Worsley in the second period when the Leafs came up with a bruised right knee.

Johnny Bower took over from Terry Sawchuk in the third period and allowed Beliveau's goal. It was only the third time four goalkeepers played in a single game.

The crowd gave the Canadiens the loudest applause of the season in the third period when they successfully killed off a two-man advantage with Dick Duff and Jim Roberts.

Claude Larose has been the Canadiens' star in their last two wins, picking up five points in the games. Last week he was about to be shipped to the minors but appears to have won a steady job with the Canadiens.

In New York, the Rangers played give-away hockey in the first 10 minutes, handing the Bruins a pair of goals. Ron Schock's goal came on a behind-the-net pass that hit Ranger defenceman Arnie Brown and bounced into the net.

Ted Green's goal was set up by Ranger Don Marshall who accidentally hit the puck right at Green while attempting to clear it out of the New York zone on a penalty-killing trick.

Boston goalie Ed Johnston.

WIDE MARGIN

Clay, slated to make his first 1967 title defense against Ernie Terrell in Houston, Tex., Feb. 6, received 232 votes to outdistance premier Miller Jim Ryan of the University of Kansas for the title. Ryan, who set a world mile mark of 3:51.3 on July 17, drew 143 votes.

The U.S. made it a sweep of the first three places as sprinter Tommie Smith of San Jose State collected 132 votes on the basis of world records in the 200-yard run (19.5 seconds), 220 yards around a turn (20.0 seconds).

BRABHAM FOUTH

Auto racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia was named fourth with 121 votes and Eusebio, Portuguese soccer star, was fifth with 97 votes, followed by England soccer star Bobby Charlton, 49; Polish track ace Irena Kirzenstein, 46; Russian gymnast Mikhail Voronin, 44, and the entire English soccer squad that won the World Cup, 43.

Don Schollander of Yale, received 34 votes for his swimming exploits.

Next games: Tonight—New York at Detroit, Chicago at Boston.

Jim Pappin, Tim Horton and George Armstrong scored.

Jim Pappin, Tim Horton and George Armstrong scored.

FOUR GOALKEEPERS

Both teams used their two goalkeepers as Charlie Hodge took over from Gump Worsley in the second period when the Leafs came up with a bruised right knee.

Johnny Bower took over from Terry Sawchuk in the third period and allowed Beliveau's goal. It was only the third time four goalkeepers played in a single game.

The crowd gave the Canadiens the loudest applause of the season in the third period when they successfully killed off a two-man advantage with Dick Duff and Jim Roberts.

Claude Larose has been the Canadiens' star in their last two wins, picking up five points in the games. Last week he was about to be shipped to the minors but appears to have won a steady job with the Canadiens.

In New York, the Rangers played give-away hockey in the first 10 minutes, handing the Bruins a pair of goals. Ron Schock's goal came on a behind-the-net pass that hit Ranger defenceman Arnie Brown and bounced into the net.

Ted Green's goal was set up by Ranger Don Marshall who accidentally hit the puck right at Green while attempting to clear it out of the New York zone on a penalty-killing trick.

Boston goalie Ed Johnston.

Europe Loves Cassius

LONDON (UPI) Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who defended his heavyweight title twice in England and once in Germany this week, Wednesday was named "sportsman of the year" in the annual balloting conducted in Europe by United Press International.

Clay, slated to make his first 1967 title defense against Ernie Terrell in Houston, Tex., Feb. 6, received 232 votes to outdistance premier Miller Jim Ryan of the University of Kansas for the title. Ryan, who set a world mile mark of 3:51.3 on July 17, drew 143 votes.

The U.S. made it a sweep of the first three places as sprinter Tommie Smith of San Jose State collected 132 votes on the basis of world records in the 200-yard run (19.5 seconds), 220 yards around a turn (20.0 seconds).

BRABHAM FOUTH

Auto racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia was named fourth with 121 votes and Eusebio, Portuguese soccer star, was fifth with 97 votes, followed by England soccer star Bobby Charlton, 49; Polish track ace Irena Kirzenstein, 46; Russian gymnast Mikhail Voronin, 44, and the entire English soccer squad that won the World Cup, 43.

Don Schollander of Yale, received 34 votes for his swimming exploits.

Leafs Find Basement Totems Still Rising

SEATTLE 4, PORTLAND 3
VANCOUVER 2, SAN DIEGO 3

Victoria Maple Leafs were forced into the Western Hockey League basement and Seattle Totems took over third place in a pair of overtime games played last night.

San Diego Gulls, who have been at the bottom of the heap since the start of the season, finally made it out of the cellar when Len Ronson, player of the week last week, scored in the third extra minute to beat Vancouver Canucks, 3-2, in San Diego.

Totems, who have now won four in a row and six of their last seven games, knocked off the leading Portland Buckaroos for the second time in a row when Bill Dineen got his second goal of the game after only 33 extra seconds to snap a 3-3 deadlock.

Canucks, who were stopped by fine goalkeeping in the third period when Les Binkley came with 17 of his 33 stops, also lost Brit Selby for six or more weeks.

Selby, the rookie of the season in the National Hockey League last season, suffered a broken right ankle in a second-period collision with San Diego defenceman Jim Watson.

It climaxed a bad evening for the Canucks, who gave up the Gulls' second goal when a shot from behind the nets deflected in off a Canuck skate.

Arnie and Jack Set Course Mark

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (CP)—Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer had a total of 10 birdies Wednesday and took the first-round lead in the $275,000 Professional Golfers Association national team championships with a sizzling 63.

In their best round ever as teammates—it was one stroke more than the course record—Palmer collected six birdies and Nicklaus four as they toured the front nine of the tough, 6,896-yard east course in 33 and came home in 30.

Brothers Jay and Lionel Herbert, Burt Weaver and Wes Ellis, Tom Shaw and Joe Carr and Howie Johnson and Cris Blocker were bunched in second place at 64.

Locked in third place with 65s were the teams of Bob Goalby and Doug Ford, Dave Hill and Charles Sifford, Doug Sanders and Al Besselin, Billy Farrell and Dave Lehman, Larry Wise and Bill Skoretz, Bobby Mitchell and Wright Garrett and Chick Harbert and Vic Ghezzi.

Sixteen of the 120 two-man teams seeking the $50,000 first prize were back in fourth place at 66. They included Willemink of Winnipeg, playing with Ralph Montoya of Little Falls, N.Y., and defending champions Gay Brewer Jr. and Butch Baird, who won last year's inaugural with a 29-under-par 259.

Mt. Douglas XV Gets Smart Win

MT. DOUGLAS (CP) — Defenceman Gary Begg underwent surgery Tuesday and will be lost to Canada's national hockey team for the next two weeks.

A club official said the medical staff decided on the operation to remove bone chips from his elbow, which had been bothering the 25-year-old star since the start of the season.

Begg will miss games against the Soviet team Dec. 18 in Vancouver and Dec. 19 in Victoria, but will be back in shape for the international centennial tournament opening here New Year's Day.

Hockey TV Fans to Get Pause for Refreshments

NEW YORK (CP) — If you've been watching U.S. and Canadian professional football on television this fall, you may have noticed that the officials extend certain time-outs to accommodate the commercials on the small screen.

Aside from the normal breaks that occur after a scoring play, there are artificial halts in the play to give the sponsors a minute here or there to advertise their products.

It's not surprising, considering how much the advertisers contribute to the game through television, especially in the National and American leagues.

Now, with CBS preparing to televise National Hockey League games in the United States, there may be similar arrangements.

Variety, the show business weekly, tells of tests being made on devices to ensure liaison between referees and camera directors when the NHL games go on TV after the football season ends in January.

The time out for a commercial is no problem when the game is put on tape, as was done by NBC last spring when it showed some Stanley Cup playoff games.

Nor is it a problem for the CBC and CTV in Canada which run brief superimposed commercials on the screen before faceoffs.

WILL GO LIVE

But CBS, which has a rich contract to put the NHL on country-wide TV for the next three years, plans to carry the action live.

Tested recently in New York and Detroit was a device that the referees carries in their shirt pocket. It's about the size of the smallest transistor radio and picks up signals from the video director, letting the official know a time-out is desired at the earliest opportunity.

The normal delay between an offside whistle and faceoff may be 15 to 25 seconds, but when he gets that signal the referee is expected to stall the resumption of play for another 30 seconds or so on a commercial.

How well hockey fans, accustomed to having their entertainment fast, furious and relatively uninterrupted, react to the extended time-outs?

Variety is both pessimistic and resigned.

"The added lapse may not all too well with the fans, but then it's not their choice to make. The network has no other way to assure filling its quota of sponsor pitches."

In Canadian football, one way of signalling to the referee is to have someone on the sidelines put on a red cap when the commercial starts and take it off when it ends.

Perhaps if the electronic device works, it will be adapted for the gridiron.

Other pairings in the eights of "A" event this afternoon will be Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., against Merv Mann of Saskatoon, Wayne Sable of Edmonton and Slim Otter of Calgary, and Ernie Richardson of Regina against Tom Kruger of Edmonton.

Richardson won on the last rock, 9-6, against Del McIntyre of Edmonton, who defeated the four-time world champ in the qualifying rounds.

Pickering defeated Lee Green of Calgary 10-8, Mann cracked a big three on the ninth with a sensational double and went on to a 9-6 victory over Norm Theuss of Edmonton. Sable stole the winning point on the 12th end to nip fellow-townsmen Bill Crowley 9-8. Otter won scored four times in the 11th for a 12-8 victory over Lionel Wood of Edmonton.

Makes Good

Dave Ellsworth, a 195-pounder who played football in Victoria with the Victoria Mustangs, was a standout in his second season with the Simon Fraser University team. Ellsworth, an outside linebacker, made 55 primary tackles, intercepted three passes, one for a touchdown. He also averaged 47.4 yards with 21 kick-off returns and kicked two field goals and six converts to be second in the individual scoring race with 18 points.

University Goal of Sightless Girl

By NANCY BROWN
Coralee Cawley, 3000 Glen Lake, intends to be the first blind student at the University of Victoria next year and getting her there is a family project.

Last year Coralee attended Belmont high school for some of her courses. "We did intend her going again this year but she was only taking a few courses, and would have spent most of her time just waiting around there."

Completion of assignments for the correspondence course involves a great deal of Mrs. Cawley's time. When the papers arrive in the mail, she makes a tape recording of the lesson and of the questions.

Coralee types her answers—an accomplishment learned during some years spent in the school for the blind in Vancouver.

"I'm not a very good typist," she said, "and so my time going over my answers for typing errors. The trouble is that I cannot see if I have made a mistake, to go back and correct it, and if I start hitting the wrong key, I may continue for quite a while with my fingers in the wrong position. That can be quite a mess."

Mrs. Cawley hopes that when the correspondence classes finish this year, she will have more time for the rest of the family.

There are four children: Clifford, 15; Clyde, 13; Kevin, 11; and Cindy, 7.

Coralee can't quite make up her mind which subjects to major in.

Her aptitude for English, and her enjoyment of other people lead her to think about newspaper work. On the other hand, she likes languages, and could perhaps work as an interpreter.

Whatever her aim, she shouldn't have too much difficulty, according to another blind Victorian, Peter Clarkson, who graduated in animal husbandry from UBC.

$18,000 Carr Painting Not Top Class Example

The curator of the Greater Victoria Art Gallery said Tuesday the Emily Carr painting which sold in Vancouver for a peak price was not a top class example of her work.

Commenting on the $18,000 sale Colin Graham said "This was a good painting, but not really a top example of Emily Carr's work."

Small, Partisan Group Scored by Chairman

PORT ALBERNI — Dick Christie, chairman of the board of School District 70, warned voters in the Saturday election of the dangers of electing a small partisan group in the place of a wide representation on the school board.

Such a group, he intimated, is the one headed by Gerald Gray, former board member for 28 years, who resigned last month after a disagreement over teacher salary negotiations.

Mr. Christie said that Mr. Gray's approach to settlement of the teacher salary negotiations last spring was turned down by the board after considerable discussion.

Mr. Gray has also touched on staff turnover which he claims is 40 per cent.

Mr. Christie explained that timing was a big factor. Costs rose at an unprecedented rate and the school was urgently needed for September, '66.

The board made the decision it was entrusted to make," said Mr. Christie. "The final result was that we could not build as much school with the budgeted money as had been expected three years previously."

But then, Mr. Gray is as well aware of these facts as I am," Mr. Christie concluded. "He chooses to use this information for different purposes."

Teeners Like Nickel Spike

NANAIMO — The Junior Achievement teen-agers have come up with a novel project for their business enterprise — a nickel-plated spike.

Using a railway spike for a base they have mounted a pen upon it. The result is an attractively novel desk set.

In the coming year, after the sale of the present project — Christmas corsages — the spikes will go on sale.

It is quite timely, in that the railroad spike helped nail Canada together, a hundred years ago.

In the past three years, the Junior Achievement program has grown large enough to include two groups of teen-agers.

One company, Mac Et, has been working on centre-pieces. The two companies are formed for a year, are operated like any other company with shareholders, dividends, and finally, the shares are bought back, and each company dissolved.

Under the guidance of the Jaycees, the young people learn the various aspects of business.

Tragedy Ends Gun Game

BOSTON (AP)—A small child brought a loaded revolver to a porch and handed it to one of several children playing there. The child pulled the trigger and the shot from the .38-calibre revolver killed Michelle Baxter, 4, police said.

Secret Shelf Letter

Did B.C. Balk U.S. Lab?

By JACK FRY, Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett has a secret letter which explains why B.C. last week hastily slapped a Crown reserve on Canada's Pacific continental shelf, it was learned Wednesday.

It now is believed the government laid claim to the shelf in an effort to thwart the plans of a large U.S. research firm to establish an underwater base of operations off the coast of B.C. whether these plans were of a commercial or military nature, and several large firms reached in California and Washington, D.C., denied any knowledge of the venture.

REASON WHY

Premier Bennett earlier brushed aside the Crown reserve with the comment that the government simply wanted "to stop squatters sneaking in." He would neither deny nor confirm reports that he had a letter in his possession relating to the continental shelf.

"There must be some mystery in politics," he said. But Attorney General Bonner, who initiated the unusual action, confirmed the existence of a letter addressed to the premier, which had some bearing on the government's decision.

"I've seen such a letter. It contained a tangible indication of activity offshore," said the attorney-general.

He said the government had been informed of these activities as a courtesy, but he could not remember whom the letter came from.

NO PROVISION

ing log-dumping, booming or storage, oyster and other mollusc fishery, barge or ship moorings, marine gas stations and canneries or fish camps. At the time the government laid claim to its share of the continental shelf, Mr. Bonner said it was acting to protect the future interests of British Columbians, in view of the recent undersea research developments which had taken place in the U.S.

He said he was certain that techniques perfected in such experiments as the U.S. Navy's underwater Sealab in California would in time be used to "mine and deal with the terrain which lies beneath the water."

VANCOUVER (CP)—A witness told Wednesday what he knew of the bugging of hotel rooms occupied by union delegates and said he had literally been left holding the bag after the operation.

Howard William McAnish, former assistant to private investigator Weldon Graham, told a royal commission inquiry that on Graham's instructions he booked into the Ritz Hotel under an assumed name Nov. 2.

WITH BAGGAGE

On Nov. 7, at a time when he knew two other rooms were supposedly bugged, Graham left him in another room with some baggage and then left.

McAnish said he expected Graham back but about three hours later seven or eight police officers moved in and seized the baggage containing the bugging equipment.

"I was very unhappy about it," McAnish told Commissioner R. A. Sargent. He said he quit Graham's employ the same day.

Separatist Blasted

MP Stalls Dock Plan

By RON COLLISTER, Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Single-handed, a Quebec separatist has blocked the government's plan to put 10,000 men back to work and stop a West Coast work stoppage that is costing millions of dollars a day.

Gilles Gregoire, the independent MP for Lapointe, Wednesday ignored pleas from all parties to let the government bend the rules and bring in legislation to end the strikes today.

After half an hour of pleas, government House Leader George McIlraith, fighting hard to control his rage, said: "I don't believe that any parliamentarian can afford to have Parliament as a whole blackmailed."

His action in the Commons Wednesday was a bitter blow for French-English relations, and many westerners saw it just that way.

In his appeal to Mr. Gregoire, New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas said:

"If we are to have any type of national unity and national identity, it will have to come from recognizing not only the problems in our own provinces, but also the problems of people in other parts of Canada."

Mr. Gregoire refused to give unanimous consent to allow the Commons to sit in special session at 11 a.m. today to deal with legislation to appoint a public administrator to end the work stoppage.

The government needs unanimous consent to change rules or proceed with legislation unless it gives 40-hours notice.

U.S. Arrests, Frees Mayor

Major Flap in Saigon

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. military police, disarmed and handcuffed the mayor of Saigon early today after he was reported creating a disturbance and firing a machine-gun on the city waterfront.

Mayor Van Van Cua, 40, a paratrooper colonel and doctor, was taken enraged and shouting to a police station where he was released after his identity was established.

The U.S. embassy expressed regret, but not an apology, over the incident, and began an investigation.

U.S. officials said an MP jeep patrol found a man had been firing across the Saigon River near a floating restaurant about 3 a.m., during curfew hours, and a small crowd had collected.

The MPs said the man had been drinking and pointed the gun at them. They slapped it away, frisked him—finding a revolver, and handcuffed him before Vietnamese MPs took him to police headquarters.

Witnesses said the mayor at first demanded Prime Minister Ky or U.S. Ambassador Lodge unlock his handcuffs but later after a U.S. diplomat appeared.

The mayor's office said he paid $450 to a night club when an American could not pay for his drinks. The American then accused the mayor of stealing his wallet and, in an ensuing dispute, Cua fired his revolver. The American called U.S. MPs.

Both Sides Sue

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shipping on the west coast was still at a standstill Wednesday while both sides in a longshore dispute waited for federal action. (See also Page 5.)

Meanwhile, longshoremen and longshore foremen filed separate damage writs in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday.

Hellyer Starts Final Big Sell

One Force 'Right for All'

OTTAWA (Special) — Defence Minister Hellyer, starting the final "big sell" of unification, Wednesday called it right for the nation, for the force and for the men and women who serve in it.

It was the start of second reading of the unification bill and, after a one-day skirmish, it was put off until a later date. A marathon debate is certain.

The first reaction to Mr. Hellyer's 63-page speech came from Conservative Marcel Lambert, who charged the government is putting Canada's defence into the hands of the U.S.

The government, he said, is turning Canada's forces into a peacekeeping force for the UN.

But "peacekeeping is no longer 'in good odor' at the UN," he claimed.

"We would have to rely more and more," Mr. Lambert said, "on the U.S. to defend us in future attacks."

"We would have to look to the presence of U.S. troops and installations on Canadian soil."

This way, he said, Canada would become a satrap of the U.S.

And how much acceptance of Canada's peacekeeping forces would there be at the UN if Canada were a satrap of the U.S.?

In defence of his bill, the final act of unification of the armed forces, ushering in a single green uniform and a single-rank structure, Mr. Hellyer said:

"The object of this bill is not to destroy and erase in one stroke the traditions of the past but to build, on the solid foundation we have forged, a strong and viable force to meet Canada's needs of tomorrow."

He promised Canada's influence, and its capacity to act in favor of peace and

'Defence in Jeopardy If Forces Are United'

Landymore

HALIFAX (CP) — Rear-Admiral William Landymore, fired from the navy for his opposition to unification of the armed services, Wednesday unleashed a blistering denunciation of the program.

The 50-year-old former sea operations chief said unification would kill effective defence of Canada, crush morale in the three services and spark a mass exodus of serving officers and men. (See also Page 18.)

Admiral Landymore said Defence Minister Hellyer "has no regard whatsoever for the state of morale in the navy" and wants to spend $60,000,000 — the price of two replenishment ships — to put servicemen in uniforms most of them don't want.

He described his fight against unification as "the

Mount View Drive

Girls and 500 Both Winners

Girls beat boys Wednesday in Mount View Senior Secondary School's United Nations club penny drive.

But the real winners are the 500 neediest families in the Greater Victoria area who will share receipts of the drive.

A total of 4,724 pennies lined the auditorium floor, 2,380 of them set out by girls.

Donations by a student of 50 cents or more earned him — and, it seems, more often, her — an award of a red, blood-drop badge which read, "I gave till it hurt."

Signs throughout the school asked, "Are you hurting?"

It's just such drives that make the Colonist 500 Fund click.

Over its 10-year history, the fund has had the backing of thousands upon thousands of students with various schemes for collecting money.

Also numerous have been the adult clubs, associations and fraternities which have either donated outright or conducted drives to benefit the 500 fund.

A feature that appeals to every donor is that there are no administration costs involved. Every cent collected goes to the 500 neediest families as selected by welfare agencies.

Lack of toys this year has forced the sad disappearance of an annual toy auction which always sizeably bolstered fund receipts.

Mount View is the first school in the area to contribute to this year's fund, but there has been an indication a drive is being considered in at least one other school.

Wednesday the fund jumped $388.64 to $5,340.38. The total assured each of the 500 needy families a cheque of slightly more than $10 for Christmas.

Last year for the first time
